NAZI SWEEP THREATENS TO FLANK TRIPLE ALLIES

STOCKHOLM, April 27 (AP)—A modern marvel of transporting motorized troops, tanks and armored cars over 50 miles of hazardous mountain roads in less than a day to within striking distance of British forces south of Trondheim appeared to have been achieved tonight by a German column.

Reports from the frontier said the Germans sped over the mountains from Tynset to Kvikne and Inset to within striking distance of the British troops at Storen, which is only 30 miles south of the important German-held port of Trondheim.

Thus the Germans appeared to have excuted a flanking movement on British troops reported in both Roros and Dombaas areas. They lacked only about 35 miles of completing the thrust up central Norway from Oslo to Trondheim.

(Inset is a small town near the railroad line from Trondheim to Dombaas and Oslo and is immediately south of Ullsberg, a short distance from Storen.)

THREAT TO ALLIES

Neutral observers said it was almost impossible to see how the Germans had pushed over the mountains in such a short time without losses.

This advance was reported a decided threat to the Allies, who evidently did not think such a move possible.

On the Roros front, east of Kvikne and Inset, the Germans were reported stopped by Norwegian volunteers on a highway to the Swedish frontier.

Earlier, Swedish dispatches had reported slashing German columns moving across central Norway were endangering British-French and Norwegian positions in the entire Trondheim area.

Latest dispatchs indicated that Norwegian units already were well scattered, while the allied forces were giving ground before the pressure of relentless attacks by machine-gunning German planes

NAZIS NEAR DOMBAAS

They said a decisivie battle was being awaited at Dombaas, 100 miles south of Trondheim and 75 miles south of Storen. This is the highly important railroad and highway junction where the road from Oslo branches off to Andalsnes, allied troop landing port, to the west and Storen and Trondheim to the north.

The German drive on Dombaas was reported to have nearly reached that town, possession of which goes far toward giving control over the central Norwegian railway network.

In the Roros area German operations were said to have extended almost to the Swedish border, 25 miles east of Roros, and to be reaching northwest toward Storen, 30 miles south of Trondheim.

In both actions Germar planes swooping down into the narrow valleys, were said to be breaking up defense units and thus enabling the small but well-equipped German forces to move forward.

In the sector north of Trondheim, where the Allies—French troops of

UNTRUE, BRITAIN REPLIES

LONDON, April 27 (INS)—The new German white book alleging British plans to invade Norway was labeled a "perversion of truth" by official British sources today.

In Paris, the French shrugged off von Ribbentrop's address and called his "white book" "much ado about nothing."

France jammed radio channels and prevented a broadcast of the German charges being heard.

An official British statement handed to the press said:

"The world will scarcely be impressed by Ribbentrop's disingenuous statement which from beginning to end is characterized by deliberate perversions of truth.

"Ribbentrop declared there was no reason for war. The reason was a deliberate attack on Poland to which Britain and France both were bound by treaty engagements.

"There is no truth in Ribbentrop's assertion of Allied plans to dismember the German nation. The prime minister has already described this allegation as a malicious misstatement.

"As regards so-called British plans to invade Scandinavia, Ribbentrop bases his charges on alleged statements by Winston Churchill and others.

"The facts are:

"First, it is true that the British and French governments, as they already have openly declared, were determined to stop German abuse of Norwegian territorial waters. Hence their decision to lay a mine field.

"Second, the allied governments sought permission to send help to Finland by way of Norway and Sweden. When this was

GERMANY DECLARES WAR ON NORWAY; HITLER ALIBIS

BERLIN, April 27 (AP)—Germany today proclaimed the existence of a state of war between the Reich and the Kingdom of Haakon VII and charged the Allies before the world with deep-seated plans to invade Norway which German intervention foiled "by a few hours."

Shortly after Adolf Hitler in a sweeping proclamation ended the twilight diplomatic status of Germany's invasion of Norway, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop announced the publication of "documentary proof" that the Allies had planned to occupy Norway in an effort to widen the war "to destroy Germany."

Norway connived at the plan, von Ribbentrop asserted in a half-hour address in the chancellery before the diplomatic corps, the foreign and German press, and high German naval, army and air force officials.

"During German troop operations in Norway," he said, "we found the entire plan of occupation of the allied army."

Even as he spoke, the government released a series of documents purporting to prove that the British issued orders on April 6 and 7 for the seizure of strategic Scandinavian points and the high command belatedly announced the capture of some 300 British prisoners in Norway, among them a staff commander bearing "a number of politically and militarily important British operations orders and documents."

BLAMES HAAKON FOR WAR

Hitler's proclamation placed the blame for the existence of a state of war between Haakon's kingdom and Germany on the government of Premier Johan Nygaardsvold, which, by its diplomatic and military activity, "created a state of war."

Von Ribbentrop's announcement placed the blame for the German campaign in Norway on the Allies, who, he said, were balked in their campaign to destroy Germany first by the West Wall, the capitulation of Poland, and then the peace which eliminated the Russian-Finnish conflict as an excuse for widening the European war.

Britain's laying of mines in Norwegian territorial waters, announced April 8 as a measure against German traffic there, he said "in reality . . . was to serve to protect the English expeditionary force which was already in the North sea at this time . . ."

"On April 9, in the morning, Germany started a counter-attack The object was to prevent the English from landing in the Norwegian ports," he declared. "When the allied statesmen saw that their plan had failed they made the gravest accusations against the German people."

(Editor's Note: Von Ribbentrop's argument, war experts point out, hardly stands the cold light of facts in this matter of time. Trustworthy reporters have proved without doubt the Nazi agents must have worked in Norway for weeks preparing the way for the German invasion. Correspondents have related how Oslo and

2 Cruisers Hit, Germans Claim

BERLIN, April 27 (AP)—DNB reported tonight that German planes bombed and seriously damaged a British cruiser today off the northern Norwegian port of Narvik while at Andalsnes, on the west coast, another British cruiser carrying anti-aircraft guns was bombed and put out of action.

Narvik is occupied by German forces; Andalsnes is an allied base below Trondheim.

DNB, German official news agency, also said two British transports were bombed and set afire in Molde fjord in the Andalsnes region.

HUNGARY ASKS BALKAN CONTROL FOR DANUBE

BUDAPEST, April 27 (AP)—The Hungarian government announced today it had proposed international control of the 75-mile stretch of the Danube near the iron gate which Germany accused the Allies of attempting to dynamite.

The Hungarian proposal, which was reliably understood to have full German backing, was sent to Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Rumania, a foreign office communique said.

The communique said Hungary feels after "recent happenings" along the Danube "no one nation alone could take responsibility for the policing, therefore all must work together."

Yugoslavia and Rumania have refused German offers to police the river.

Under today's proposal, Rumania and Yugoslavia would have to give up sovereignty over the Danube where it forms their boundary between Moldova and Turnu-Severin, below the iron gate.

Hitler's First Declaration Of War Is Against Norway

BERLIN, April 27 (INS)—After 19 days of terrific fighting on Norwegian territory, Germany today officially declared a state of war exists between the Reich and Norway.

The declaration of war was hardly considered a surprise since the refugee government of King Haakon and Premier Nygaardsvold defied the German invaders from the first Nazi attack in the early morning hours of April 9.

(It was the first time the German government of Chancellor Hitler, on its own initiative, has issued a formal declaration of war. The Saar plebiscite, the Rhineland invasion, occupation of Austria, acquisition of the Sudetenland, gobbling of Bohemia and Moravia and transfer of Slovakia to Hungarian protection, control of Memel, the rape of Poland, all were accompanied without a single formal declaration of war by Hitler. Britain and France were the first to proclaim a state of hostility as a climax to the crisis last September following the German invasion of Poland.)

Chair for Boy Killer, Hope of Girl's Dad

PHILADELPHIA, April 27—A life for a life was the demand today of the distraught stepfather of slain, 16-year-old Edith Snyder, pictured by authorities as a tragic victim of puppy love.

EDITH SNYDER, 16-YEAR-OLD HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT
Frustrated Puppy Love Blamed for Her Death

EDWIN SNYDER
Sister Died in His Arms

Expressing utmost sorrow the accused young killer's parents, Edward J. Smith, an insurance salesman, insisted that justice prevail for Robert D. Heineman, also 16, accused in a jealousy slaying.

Under Pennsylvania law the youth if convicted of first degree murder might be sentenced to death in the electric chair.

Apparently unmindful that he faces the death penalty, the youth begged to see his sweetheart's body and wept when he was told that six of his classmates will serve as pallbearers at her funeral Monday.

He asked if Edith's picture was in the papers; then begged that he be allowed to cut it out.

"Please, can't I have the papers," he pleaded. "I want all of them."

Meanwhile, authorities withheld decision on his request to see the girl's body.

Grilled for hours, young Heineman, son of a Temple University physical education instructor, broke down and allegedly blurted:

"Yes, I did it. I was in love with Edith. I'll tell all about it."

The young girl died from a bullet which pierced her heart as she sat studying in the living room of her home. The shot was fired through a window.

In announcing the alleged confession, Asst. Dist. Atty. David E Groshens said:

"This is a case of frustrated puppy love."

The boy was brought face to face with his dad during the questioning.

Tensely the father asked:

"Did you do this?"

"Yes I did," the boy replied.

"Why did you do it?"

"Because I loved her."

Groshens said young Heineman told him:

"I was jealous. I was in love with her and she had dates with other boys. On Sunday she told me she had met the most wonderful boy in the world. I couldn't stand it. I made up my mind to scare her."

Told of the questioning, the girl's father, who also has adopted Edith's 17-year-old brother, Edwin, said:

"I hope he gets the chair."

"I don't believe there was anything between them; they were too young," he continued in speaking of the friendship between the principals in the tragic shooting.

Heineman's mother collapsed and his father murmured:

"I can't say anything now. I'm just too shocked."

NOTE WAS CLUE

Suspicion first was directed at Robert by a crumpled note found in Edith's handbag. It said:

"It is imperative that I see you at the end of the fifth period. If I don't, someone will die. Bob."

Young Heineman had been so attentive to the chestnut-haired girl, who was popular in school and an active member of an Abington Sunday school class, that he immediately was singled out for lengthy questioning. His possession of a pistol and discovery that he had not been at home, as he claimed, at the time of the shooting, finally "broke" the boy.

Heineman told how he drove a borrowed car to Edith's home, sneaked up on the porch and peered through a living room window to find the girl studying for her next day classes. Kneeling down, he leveled the pistol just above the window sill, took aim and fired, Robert allegedly stated.

BOY'S STORY

"I thought she was only hurt," Groshens quoted Robert as relating. "But when she fell down I thought she was dead. I didn't know what to do. I put the gun to my head and pulled the trigger and nothing happened. I think it jammed.

Don't Forget To Set Clocks Ahead Tomorrow

Time does a hop, skip and a one-hour jump at 2 a. m. tomorrow.

That's the official hour to set the clocks and watches AHEAD, but for those who forever are mystified by daylight saving it may be necessary to repeat: You don't have to stay up until 2 a. m. if you are accustomed to retire early.

Moving the hands forward one hour at bedtime has exactly the same effect for tomorrow's church going.

The added hour of daylight will stay in effect until the last Sunday in September, when distraught parents will sigh relief. It's quite a stunt to put kiddies to bed when the sun is still lingering in the western sky.

Each of the girls also received indeterminate sentences for larceny.

The four were arrested after robbing the owner of an Amherst garage and the son of Amherst's police chief, John L. Trainor.

Sarah Fabyan to File Divorce Suit in Reno

Balked in her attempts to win a Massachusetts divorce, Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, second ranking woman tennis player of the nation, today was domiciled in Reno, Nev., in preparation for a new try for marital freedom from Marshall Fabyan, Jr., Manchester socialite.

Mrs. Fabyan has been living on a ranch south of Reno and will file suit for divorce within the next month. Her attorney, Douglas A. Busey, Nevada state tennis champion for the past 10 years, refused to reveal on what grounds the divorce would be sought.

Last Feb. 14 Judge John A. Costello dismissed a divorce petition filed by Mrs. Fabyan in Essex probate court, at Salem, charging cruel and abusive treatment on the ground that she had failed to produce evidence to show she had been ill used.

The socially prominent Fabyan and the tennis star, also a social registerite, were married in October, 1934, at the Palfrey summer home in Sharon. The Palfreys reside in Brookline and her father, John Gorham Palfrey, is a prominent Boston attorney.

Suspect Seized by 4 Girls Held in $5000

Faced in Malden court today by a pretty 118-pound girl captor, one of four girls who overwhelmed him in a running battle, a six foot, 200-pound WPA worker pleaded innocent to a robbery charge.

Harold W. Davis, 34, of Pearl st., WPA worker and father of two children, was held in $5000 before Judge Elbridge G. Davis, after the girls and their escort, John J. Wishonski, 22, of Emerald st., Malden chased and captured him, following an alleged theft.

The quartet included Mary Griffin, 19, and Alice Porter, 18, both of the Fellsway, Doris Sullivan, 20, of Second st., and Rita Barr, 18, of Sidney st., all Medford.

The group said they saw Miss Mary J. Comerford, 55, of Fourth st., Medford, knocked down by a burly assailant at Avon st., and the Fellsway, Malden.

They drove their car toward the scene of the assault and saw a man run toward Medford st., they told police. Near the end of this street, Wishoski forced his car over the walk to corner the runaway.

A brief struggle ensued, during which fists, hat pins and umbrellas served as weapons for the battling quartet.

Suddenly breaking loose, the fugitive ran to Julia st., only to be stopped by Wishoski's car again. Once more the battle was renewed, once more the man managed to shake clear his feminine assailants and escape.

Two more engagements followed, one in Oakland st., the other at Highland st., after a mile of territory had been covered.

At the height of the final fracas, in Highland st., Patrolmen Howard and William Butler of Malden appeared on the scene in a cruiser, but again the beleaguered man fled.

Exhausted, he was quickly overtaken. On his person, police asserted, was found Miss Comerford's purse containing $2.60.

HUB IS SET TO VOTE IN PRIMARY

The stage was being set today for Tuesday's Presidential primary in Massachusetts.

Some 2,500,000 ballots are being distributed, which represent an increase of 500,000 over registration figures in 1936, William N. Hardy, third deputy Secretary of State, said.

Boston will get its ballots Monday at 11 a. m. Hardy said about 13,000 names would appear on the ballots, some 3000 less than four years ago.

Votes will be cast for national convention delegates-at-large, alternate delegates, district delegates in the 15 congressional districts and for state committeemen from the 40 senatorial districts, and ward and town committees.

Job-Hunting Honeymooners Held for Trial

Their story of a honeymooning trans-continental job hunt in a borrowed auto branded as fantastic by Asst. U. S. Atty. Jackson J. Holtz, youthful Mr. and Mrs. Keith E. Hagerty, penniless, stranded Montana newlyweds, were held in $2000 each in federal court here today.

They are charged with unlawful interstate transportation of a motor vehicle.

"It's going to take government agents at least two weeks to check up on the fantastic story these young roamers have concocted," Holtz told U. S. Commissioner Howard W. Robbins.

Holtz asked that hearing on the charge against the couple be deferred at least a fortnight Commr. Robbins set the date for May 13. Unable to furnish bail, the defendants were remanded to East Cambridge jail.

They were picked up here after the girl bride, the former Leona Shipp, 18, of Missoula, Mont., had allegedly sought to raise gasoline money by pawning her wedding ring. It later developed the auto they used had been reported stolen.

First member of her sex ever to play a principal role in the annual Arbor Day tree-planting at the State House, pretty Miss Barbara Everberg of Woburn ceremoniously tossed a shovelful of earth today on the roots of a 20-foot red maple, set out near the Gen Hooker statue.

Miss Everberg, a Woburn high school student, is the 16-year-old daughter of Gustave Everberg, superintendent of state buildings. Her participation in today's exercises was at suggestion of Governor Saltonstall, for whom she acted as proxy.

The city's Arbor Day observance was featured by exercises on the Common. Mayor Tobin assisted in setting out trees near Park st. subway entrance and Shaw Memorial. Park Commissioner William P. Long and other officials participated.

The mayor announced an intensive tree planting program to repair damage by the hurricane.

Stock of Unset Diamonds Hunted in Runnells Case

AUGUSTA, Me., April 27—The Runnells case moved into the realm of fantasy today with announcement by authorities that they had found possible clues to hidden state money in a rubbish can.

The can, at the rear of the Hallowell home of the accused former State Controller William A. Runnells, yielded evidence that sent police on a search of a stock of unset diamonds.

Also found, according to Special Dist. Atty.-Gen. Ralph M. Ingalls, were 500 pictures of undraped women. As a result of this discovery—a long list of women, identified from the photos, faced questioning, Ingalls said.

Ingalls said a check would be made with New England diamond merchants in an effort to determine whether allegedly stolen state money had been converted into the more portable form of diamonds.

Paul Evers, a refuse removal contractor, discovered the evidence in the form of five packages which had been set out from the Runnells home April 21, Ingalls said.

The special district attorney said he found the packages filled with receipted bills, corresponding with jewelry firms, torn negatives and photographs. He said the photo gallery, indexed, numbered at least 500 pictures and possibly 1000.

Meanwhile, Atty.-Gen. Franz U. Burkett said he had deferred temporarily the filing of an equity bill designed to permit the state to take over contents of safety deposit boxes found in the name of Runnells, his mother and brother.

Burkett said he now was trying to work out "a quicker and more economical" way of determining the ownership of holdings in the boxes. He declined to discuss details.

Bay State Gains In Cancer War

Did you know that Massachusetts is the only place in the world with a falling cancer death rate among women?

It's true, said Dr. Herbert L. Lombard of the State Department of Health today. In fact, he said, the state has maintained the unique record for the last five years.

Other places have fewer cancer deaths among women, he added, but no other place has shown a diminishing death rate.

He also reported a slight drop in cancer death rate for men. He estimated the decline for both sexes to be about 4 per cent from the all-time high of 130 per 100,000 population in 1925.

The state's gain against the disease is the result of an extensive educational program, he said.

Guild Strike Against Chicago Paper Ends

CHICAGO, April 27 (INS)—Settlement of the 17-months-old strike of the Chicago Newspaper Guild against the Chicago Herald-American was announced last night.

The following joint statement was issued by the management of the Chicago Herald-American, Victor Olander, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and Ray Edmundson, president of the CIO United Mine Workers, District 12:

"We are happy to announce that the 17-months-old Chicago Newspaper Guild strike against the Chicago Herald-American has been settled amicably by the signing of a settlement contract. The settlement assures industrial peace to the employes in the editorial and commercial departments of the newspaper.

115 BACK TO WORK

"One hundred and fifteen members of the Guild who have been on strike return to work. A number of strikers not reinstated because of the merger of the Chicago Herald-Examiner with the Chicago Evening American last August, while the strike was in progress, received settlement pay in lieu of jobs.

"The contract provides cessation of all legal actions growing out of th estrike.

"The Guild agreement, so far as it relates to conditions of employment, is similar to those contracts now in existence between the newspaper and the Editorial Ass'n and Newspaper Commercial Associates.

"The contract provides for arbitration of possible future disputs, and specifies:

"'This agreement is entered into to the end that fruitless controversies shall be avoided and good feeling and harmonious relations maintained.'

PROVIDE FOR ELECTION

"The final settlement after long negotiations was achieved through the joint offices of Victor Olander, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and Ray Edmundson, president of the United Mine Workers of America, District 12, who ironed out difficulties arising from the fact that both A. F. of L. and CIO unions represented employes in the editorial and commercial departments of the newspaper.

"All concerned have petitioned the National Labor Relations Board to order and arrange for elections among those members of the staff of the Herald-American editorial and commercial departments employed at the time of the elections. The result of the elections will determine which unions will be the exclusive representatives of the employes for future agreements. The elections are to be held not later than 180 days nor earlier than 90 days."

other Norwegian key points surrendered virtually without a shot being fired, with forts silenced, crews pulled off Norwegian warships and electrical connections to mine fields severed. Such a widespread preparation for German invasion could scarcely have been accomplished in the single day—April 8 to 9—which Ribbentrop gives in his account of Hitler's alibi for the "protective" invasion.)

With the greatest show of emotion in an otherwise deliberate address Von Ribbentropp exclaimed:

"The government of the German Reich will furnish documentary proof in a series of publications about to be made that:

"First, Britain and France had prepared for the occupation of Norway for some time before.

NORWAY IN PLOT

"Second, the Norwegian government was cognizant of this fact.

"Third, in contrast to Sweden, the Norwegian government had acquiesced in this fact and was even prepared—as was then afterwards actually the case—to participate in the war on the side of Britain and France.

"Fourth, the British attempt was frustrated in the period of a few hours by Germany's intervention.

"Finally, fifth, declarations since made by those in power in Britain (that the Allies had no designs on Scandinavia) are entirely without foundation."

Charge d'Affaires Alexander C. Kirk represented the United States in the assemblage of diplomats called to the chancellery for Von Ribbentrop's statement by a sudden invitation last night.

The diplomats and newspapermen who had been asked to come to the chancelery had to pass through the celebrated long corridor past two sentinels before Hitler's study and into the richly ornamented hall where von Ribbentrop and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano May 22 signed the German-Italian alliance.

ENVOYS IN GILDED CHAIRS

Diplomats sat in gilded chairs while the newspapermen stood in horseshoe formation enveloping them. Before them was a long table behind which virtually the entire foreign office staff and other German officials stood. Hitler was not present.

Von Ribbentrop walked in with attendants at 2:30 p. m., pale, determined and unsmiling. He wore the dark blue foreign office uniform and saluted the assemblage before speaking.

"You have been asked to come here," he said, "so that I may make accessible a number of diplomatic documents. It will be of especial importance to the neutral countries.

"On Sept. 3 England and France declared war against Germany without any reasonable arguments. Ever since January, 1933 Germany has shown its good will toward England and France.

"After realizing that an attack on the west wall would be impossible and after Poland had failed they tried to find some other means to destroy Germany.

"Since the beginning of this year England and France have tried with all their means to bring about a new scene for the war. England is trying to spare its own blood, according to its old custom.

CITES ALTMARK INCIDENT

"On Jan. 21 Churchill with his request to the neutral nations made the beginning of this campaign.

"On Jan. 31 Chamberlain reprimanded the neutrals for their indifference.

"The attack on the Altmark in neutral waters was claimed to be only a technical violation. On March 21, Stanley, the minister of war, declared that the disregard of neutral rights was in line with their policy.

"On April 5 it was stated that England would not have its hands tied by neutrals.

"On April 10, Lord Halifax asked the neutrals not to ask for help when it is too late."

"On April 12 Alfred Duff Cooper notified the Allies that they would have to make a clear statement of their position toward Germany.

"In the war between Russia and Finland the Allies saw the first opportunity for enlarging the scene of the war. They announced that they would make any action depend on the attitude of the Scandinavian states.

"On March 12 it was definitely stated that the Allies would land in Norway to help Finland if aid was called for.

"On March 11 in the evening Churchill flew to Paris in order to prevent the end of the Russian-Finnish war.

"A large number of documents have fallen into the hands of German troops in Norway which prove this only too clearly.

"From these documents it is evident that England planned to land all along the Norwegian coast and at Oslo.

"All the details of this plan have been discovered.

FINLAND MERE PRETEXT

"That they had planned to go much farther than their aid to Finland is shown from these documents.

"Finland was to be only a pretext. The true aims were revealed by a number of careless statements by Winston Churchill in spite of all the secrecy by which the plans were carried on.

"On Feb. 2 Churchill held a conference with press attaches. He stated Swedish ore must no longer reach Germany. The great aim was to draw the Scandinavian states into war.

"First, it is only too evident that Sweden absolutely maintained its neutrality.

"But it is also evident that Norway already at that time was clearly resolved to take part in the war with Germany.

"And the Norwegian navy aided this plan with all their power.

"It became ever clearer that the Allies' plan was to accuse Germany of planning to violate the neutrality laws.

VIOLATION OF NEUTRALITY

"On March 27 their plans for the occupation of Norway were practically complete.

"And they decided no longer to respect the neutral territorial waters.

"On March 30 Prime Minister Reynaud held a conversation with the foreign diplomats. He said that the danger in the west and southwest was not so acute any longer because decisive action would be taken in the north. Preparations were to be such that they were ready to interfere at any moment.

"A few days before April 8 the Reich government obtained definite information that England definitely no longer intended to respect the neutral territorial of Norway.

"The laying of mines announced for April 8 was explained on the basis of stopping the German merchant marine. But in reality it was to serve to protect the English expeditionary force which was already in the North sea at this time.

BATTLES AT SEA

"On April 8 the English government received notice of the German appearance in the North sea. They tried at once to establish contact with the German fleet. A number of English transports were destroyed by German bombers.

"On April 9, in the morning, Germany started a counter action. The object was to prevent the English from landing in the Norwegian ports. When allied statesmen saw that their plan had failed they made the gravest accusations against the German people. They denied any plans to undertake anything in Scandinavian waters.

"Chamberlain declared in the House of Commons that Germany's claim that they only took counter measures would not be believed. I will now submit to you those documents which prove my statements.

"In the great battles which took place in the last few days the German troops have broken through all the lines and have inflicted grave losses on the allied troops.

"During these maneuvers we found the entire plan of occupation of the allied army.

TELLS OF "PROOF"

"These military orders prove without doubt that the landing of English troops in Norway had been planned for a very long time.

"In fact, on the 8th of April, English naval forces, destined to land in the Norwegian ports of Stavanger, Bergen, Trondheim and Narvik, were already on the high seas.

"When the Allies, as a result of the fact that Germany frustrated their plans, realized that everything was lost, they confronted the world with statements concerning German previous preparations for the invasion of Norway.

"The German government, therefore, has decided that the time is ripe to acquaint the world with the documentary material, by means of which it will be proven that all the British assertions are nothing but complete inventions. The German forces, after their lightning-like invasion of Norway, actually were able to seize the entire secret English plan for the invasion of Norway.

"These secret plans show that it was planned to land British troops in Stavanger and other ports on the west coast of Norway.

"It is not my intention to give you in detail all the contents of these documents. They speak for themselves and are supplemented by a large number of diaries of English officers.

"Th German Government now in a series of publications will bring the documentary proof of these allegations. First that the Allies had long ago planned the invasion of Norway and that Norway knew all about it.

"Only through the intervention of Germany did this plan fail by a few hours.

"And it will prove that the statements of the Allied statesmen are nothing but lies."

Von Ribbentrop finished his speech at 8:03 a. m. (EST).

MORE "PROOF" TO COME

As he finished his address, he gave the Nazi salute in various directions and then went through the first two rows of diplomats shaking hands.

First came Monsignor Cesare Orsenigo, papal nuncio in Germany, then ambassadors and ministers and finally, in the second row, charges d'affaires.

The greeting to the Hungarian and Swedish ministers appeared especially cordial; United States Charge d'Affaires Kirk was expressionless as Von Ribbentrop shook his hand.

Kirk wore a regulation cutaway, but some other diplomats appeared in business suits.

Von Ribbentrop made clear that today's collection of alleged documents, which he offered to the diplomats at the conclusion of his handshaking, was only the beginning.

It was expected that during the ensuing days Germany will release many more.

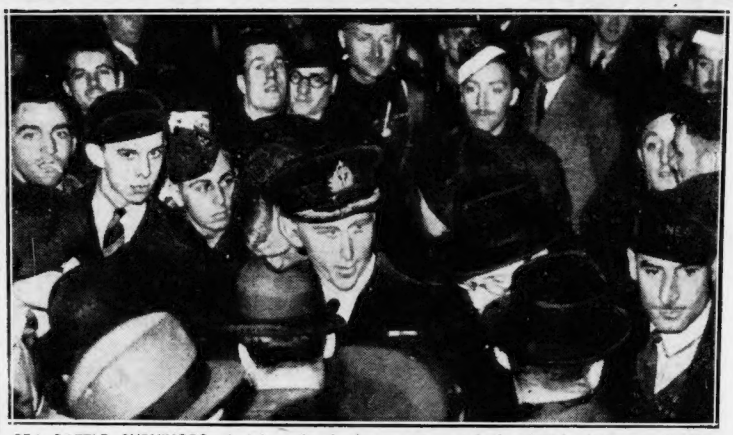
JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP

Blue Devils Now in Norway

PARIS, April 27 (AP)—France's famous "Blue Devils," the Alpine Chasseurs, were disclosed today to be fighting with the Allied expeditionary corps against the German invasion of Norway.

This became known upon the publication of photographs in the French press showing troops in the unmistakable jaunty blue berets of the mountain troops lining the rails of transport ships carrying them to the northern front.

It was the first detail to be known of the troops composing the expedition which landed April 19 in Norway.



SEA BATTLE SURVIVORS—Arriving in London, survivors of the British destroyer Gurkha, which was sunk by German plane bombs, are greeted, cheered by welcomers. Capt. A. W. Buzzard, commander of the Gurkha, (center), had to be forced from his sinking ship . . . as he had fully intended to go down with his sinking craft.

Here's the 'Proof' Germany Reveals

BERLIN, April 27 (AP)—Documents released while Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop was speaking to the foreign diplomatic corps and foreign press today included one declared to have been taken from British officers at Lillehammer, central Norway.

It was labelled an order of operations for the Sherwood Foresters.

This order listed the "general policy" as:

"The intention of the Stratford force is to effect a landing at 12, 547 and 548, and occupy these ports with a view to denying them to Germany. It is anticipated that our assistance will be welcomed by the inhabitants, but the decision as to whether or not to land will rest with the royal navy.

It was dated April 6.

INTENTION TO LAND

The next paragraph of the order, titled "intention," said:

"It is the intention of 547 to effect a landing as directed by the Royal navy and to place the following in a state of defense:

"(a) Harbor and quayside; (b) airdrome at Sola; (c) seaplane station one and one-half miles north of Sola."

(The ports listed by numbers were not further identified.)

The order said: "Opposition can only be expected in the first instance from enemy air action which might be directed against the force while actually landing.

"In such eventuality, the landing will be covered by the royal navy. As soon as troops have disembarked, they will be responsible for their own protection, and it is essential that whether there is enemy action or not the troops are moved from their assembly areas with the least possible delay.

AIM AGAINST AIRPORT

"It also is possible that while the landing can be effected at the harbor, the enemy may forestall the occupation of the airdrome, in which case immediate action must be taken to capture the airdrome."

Then followed technical details about assembly areas, one near a cathedral, another at a hospital and the third at a gas works.

Under the heading "airdrome and seaplane base, Eighth Foresters," it was ordered that the "Eighth Foresters be prepared to move at once to Sola without waiting for transport or stores. It is of vital importance that the airdrome should be secured on the same day as the landing takes place."

It provided for the guarding of stores, stationing of one company in position to fire on the airdrome and observation for the seaplane base.

Nazis, Allies Both Claim Norway Gain

British and German claims in the Norwegian battle sectors differed widely in military statements issued today.

The British reported "stabilization" of Allied positions on the Trondheim front, defeat of a German attack near the central Norwegian town of Kvam and maintenance of Norwegian positions in the neighborhood of Voss, northeast of Bergen.

The Germans, on the other hand, announced capture of Voss as well as complete destruction of a Norwegian battalion north of Narvik, and said a British cruiser was bombed out of action while German forces continued their speedy northward advance toward Trondheim.

BERLIN'S CLAIMS:

BERLIN, April 27 (AP)—Capture of some 300 British prisoners in Norway, among them a staff commander carrying important orders and documents, was reported today by the German high command in a communique on operations kept secret until now for military reasons.

The staff commander, it was claimed, was one of nearly 200 prisoners taken in the first encounter between German and British troops in a surprise German attack on Lillehammer April 22-23.

The British, the communique said, were advancing from Andalsnes, their landing base, and were dispersed and fled, leaving arms and equipment.

On April 25 two English officers and 80 men were reported captured in an attack on "another English landing detachment," which was "thrust back" after an engagement near Steinkjer.

The communique claimed officers of these troops, from the Royal regiment, King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry regiment and the Fourth Lincolnshire regiment, had "concealed" from them the presence of German soldiers in Norway.

144 prisoners were taken by German mountain troops who dispersed a Norwegian battalion north of Narvik; Voss, east of Bergen, was wrested from Norwegian forces; British naval units continued to bombard Narvik harbor and defense works; a British cruiser was damaged by German bombs in Sogne fjord, and a British plane was shot down in an "unsuccessful" raid on Aalborg airdrome in Denmark.

On the western front, the communique said, 32 prisoners were taken in "lively" skirmishes of reconnaissance units.

LONDON'S CLAIMS:

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—The war office today announced British patrols captured prisoners in Norway and that the situation in the area of Steinkjer "remains unchanged."

The communique added:

"In the Gudbrandsal (valley) a heavy German attack against allied forces in the Kvam valley has been driven off with considerable enemy loss.

"Enemy pressure in this area is being maintained and air action against Allied lines of communication and bases continues.

"There is nothing to report from the Narvik area."

SAYS NAZIS LOST HEAVILY

Earlier the situation on the Trondheim front was described as "stabilized" by a British military source that declared "things most certainly are not as bad as they might be."

Describing action south of Dombaas, mentioned in last night's communique, this source declared the Germans were "beaten back with heavy loss."

Later the Nazis returned to attack the British, under heavy mortar and machine-gun fire—evidently from strafing German aircraft—withdrew and "took less exposed positions," acording to this British source.

This action took place near Kvam and allied troops were reported to be in considerable strength southeast of Dombaas.

NORSE BATTLE TWIN PUSH

This source declared that Norwegian troops were at Voss, in the Bergen area, fighting off twin German attacks. One attack was said to be by infantry advancing along the railroad from Bergen, the second by fresh troops landed in Hardanger fjord.

Allied War Council Meets in Full Accord

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—The Allied Supreme War Council has reached "unanimity" concerning problems arising from the present phase of the war, said an announcement tonight after the council's ninth meeting, held today in London.

British Ship Sunk With 40 Tanks Aboard

BERLIN, April 27 (AP)—An official German announcement today said that in one of the Nazi air force attacks on British ships in Norwegian fjords a transport was sunk which, according to the word of British seamen taken prisoner, had 40 tanks aboard.

GERMANS FLANKING 3 ALLIES

the Foreign Legion and Chasseurs Alpines and British units—are holding positions immediately north of Steinkjer, the situation was reported unchanged. Steinkjer is 50 miles north of Trondheim.

ALLIES' FATE AT STAKE

The fate of allied troops which were said to have reached Lillehammer 80 miles south of Dombaas, was in doubt. It was believed they had retreated in the face of a German flanking move.

Neutral observers believed the question of eventual defeat or victory for the Allies in the Trondheim area will be settled in a matter of hours in the Germans continue their twin advances.

They expressed amazement at the ease with which the Germans were going forward, as well as at their ability to keep reinforcements coming through the exceedingly narrow valley roads, where defense would appear easy.

While full details of the operations were not known, tribute was paid to the apparent efficiency of German engineers in rebuilding bridges and roads that had been dynamited by the Allied and Norwegian troops.

It was believed the Germans in many instances were able to work their way around shattered bridges by crossing over frozen streams and rivers.

NORSE FLEE TO SWEDEN

Hundreds of Norwegian soldiers were fleeing across the Swedish borde east of Roros after the town had been recaptured by a German blitz column gathering new momentum in a northward drive through the Glomma river valley toward Trondheim.

One hundred miles to the southwest, between Otta and Ringebu, a second German column attempting to push up the parallel Gudbrands valley was reported engaged in a bitter, head-on battle with British troops dispatched from their concentration point at Storen to bolster slowly retreating Norwegian forces.

The flight of Norwegian forces defending the Glomma river valley was reported by Swedish newspaper correspondents last night after the Germans succeeded in recapturing Roros, which they occupied briefly Thursday but from which they later withdrew when their position proved untenable.

refused they did not proceed with the plan.

NORWAY BLOCKED ALLIES

"Third, Norway, far from deciding to enter the war on the side of the Allies, refused consistently to agree even to the passage of troops to Finland.

"Fourth, if troops had been ready for landing in Norway, there would have been no delay in coming to the assistance of Norway.

"Fifth, had the laying of minefields been merely preparations for a landing, the Allies would not have publicized the mine-laying.

"Sixth, the German expedition sailed many days before the minefields were laid.

"Seventh, it is notorious that the German landing in Norway was made possible by the activities of German secret agents.

"Eighth, His Majesty's Government is anxious that neutra's take steps to protect themselves.

"There is no doubt that extension of war into Scandinavia is due to the deliberate action of Germany.

"It is interesting to note that Ribbentrop did not attempt to justify German aggression in Denmark, which does not appear to him to be worthy of mention at all."

2000 Norwegian Ships Aid Allies

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—The British ministry of shipping in London announced through its New York office today that the Norwegian merchant fleet had been "placed at the disposal of the royal Norwegian government."

Shippers here said this meant that Norway's modern fleet of approximately 2000 ships totaling about 5,000,000 gross tons had been added to the British and French fleets.

Foreign Planes Zoned in Italy

ROME, April 27 — As war tension mounts throughout Italy, late developments point to possibility of decisive action by Mussolini at any moment.

Today an order was issued forbidding foreign planes to fly over 18 strategic zones in and around Italy, including the French and German frontiers.

Narrow passages were marked over Alpine frontiers through which planes would have to pass.

All of Italy's air and naval bases on the mainland and on Sicily, Sardinia and Pantelleria were included in the prohibited zones.

British Press Warns Public

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—The British press today warned the public to expect setbacks for allied forces in Norway until the naval, air and land forces are marshalled to their full strength against the Germans in Scandinavia.

Military commentators agreed that fighting in Norway probably would be long and tough, but predicted allied sea power ultimately would bring victory.

Some sections of the press demanded an official declaration from Prime Minister Chamberlain that the Norwegian operations are not regarded as a "side show" on the main war.

Harvard Survey On Chain Stores

WASHINGTON, April 27—Harvard Business School held a class in Washington. The teacher was Prof. Malcolm P. McNair and students were a sub-committee of Congress considering the Patman Chain Store Tax Bill.

Prof. McNair told the congressmen that a Harvard survey showed chain stores are able to charge lower prices than their competitors. He isn't worried about a chain store monopoly.

He thinks chains protect consumers from higher "monopoly prices" that manufacturers could demand if they had to deal only with weak and unorganized merchants.

¶ The future of our communities depends upon the attitude of each and every one of its citizens toward the enterprises that produce the payrolls.

¶ Temporary periods of depression—in which all groups have had to share—have brought unfortunate recessions; yet always when the clouds have rolled by, the advance has continued upward.

¶ Nothing can be more responsible for an upward climb than the cooperation of workmen themselves and their willingness to form a loyal partnership with Capital and Management — the other groups which go to form industry.

¶ Community of interest between the owners of business and those who work for them have been the reason for America's great progress toward better living. No workman can expect to be finally successful unless the business he works for is successful.

¶ Remember, no one of these groups alone can start and run a business. The combined efforts of all are needed . . . o progress in the future we MUST HAVE MUTUAL COOPERATION — MUTUAL HELPFULNESS — and MUTUAL RESPONSIBILITY.

¶ Let us not forget that the progress of one is th progress of all.

U. S. Plane Sales Stir New Protest

By ARTHUR HACHTEN
Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, April 27—Announcement that the Allied Purchasing Mission had placed orders for $200,000,000 worth of war planes and motors during the last two weeks, touched off a fresh wave of criticism in Congress of the administration's recently-adopted policy of speeding up plane sales to Great Britain and France.

The criticism was based upon fear the foreign orders will jeopardize the needs of the American army and navy by absorbing production facilities.

With the Allies revealed as in the market for a billion dollars' worth of planes and quantity production just beginning, a drive was under way in Congress to make certain these orders do not interfere with the requirements of the American Army and Navy.

Disclosure of the $200,000,000 Allied order was made by Arthur B. Purvis and Rene Pleven, members of the British-French purchasing mission, after conferring with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., who has been serving as President Roosevelt's special representative in expediting sales to the Allies.

KEEP DETAILS SECRET

While Purvis and Pleven declined to disclose details on numbers of plants and types ordered, they said the American government had granted to the Allies the right to purchase any type of plane in this country that they had sought.

Contracts were let for Curtiss, Douglas and Bell war planes, and also for engines from the Allison division of the General Motors Corporation and from the Wright Aeronautical Corporation. A contract for engines soon will be signed with the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company, the Allied officials revealed.

Warning was voiced by Sen. Walsh (D) of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs committee, that "the foreign orders must not impede delivery of planes needed for our Army and Navy."

GILLETTE'S WARNING

Sen. Gillette (D) of Iowa, a member of Senate Naval committee, warned there would be an uproar throughout the nation if time develops that America's defenses are being neglected in order to help foreign countries win their war.

Gillette said:

"There can be no objection to American airplane manufacturing companies taking foreign orders to enable them to operate at capacity with maximum efficiency, but our policy should not be to let this element attain a position where our own needs are delayed to any degree.

"I will strongly oppose either the initiation or the consummation of a policy which causes delay in supplying the needs of our own army and navy, no matter how plausible the policy may seem otherwise."

Among the planes released to the Allies was a consolidated four-engine bomber, said to have a 4000-mile cruising radius and a 300-mile-an-hour speed. The allied mission a week ago signed a contract with the Bell Aircraft Company of Buffalo, for the Aircobra. It is capable of making 400 miles an hour—one of the fastest planes ever produced.

The Allies' mission has been successful in obtaining release of nine types of American war planes, including two types of Curtiss pursuit ships; Lockheed interceptor-pursuit and bombers; one type of Douglas bomber, a Boeing four-engine bomber, a Martin bomber, the Bell fighter and the Consolidated bomber released within a week.

Congress' Girl Bachelor Asks U. S. War Curb

By COLE E. MORGAN
Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, April 27—Congress' only bachelor girl member today championed the cause of American mothers to keep their sons from being sent over seas to fight in foreign wars.

Representative Jessie Sumner (R.) of Illinois introduced in the House a concurrent resolution that provides:

"That no part of the military nor naval forces of the United States shall be ordered to participate in any armed conflicts outside of the Western Hemisphere or the territorial possessions of the United States unless and until Congress shall by concurrent resolution declare that the safety of the people of the United States is endangered."

The resolution was introduced after a delegation representing the National Legion of the Mothers of America, headed by Mrs. Charles Crail, of Los Angeles, called at the Capitol on Miss Sumner and other members of Congress to plead that some safeguard be thrown about their sons to prevent their being shunted off to a war not of America's making.

JANE WYMAN has one of the top roles in "An Angel From Texas," coming next Thursday to the Paramount and Fenway screens

'An Angel From Texas' Due Thursday at Para-Fenway

"An Angel from Texas," Warner's rewrite of George S. Kaufman's stage hit, "The Butter and Egg Man," brings Eddie Albert, Wayne Morris and Ronald Reagan and their girl friends, Rosemary Lane, Ruth Terry and Jane Wyman (Mrs. Reagan) to Paramount and Fenway screens next Thursday.

This comedy romance presents the "Brother Rats" in a streamlined version of the Kaufman play concerning the stage-struck country girl who leaves home for a New York stage career only to find that home and the local boy are best after all.

The girl in the case is Rosemary Lane. Eddie Albert portrays her yokel boy friend with a bankroll who almost falls into the clutches of ruthless theatrical promoters. Morris and Reagan are the sly, scheming producers. Miss Wyman, as the wealthy but thrifty wife of one of the slick showmen, and Ruth Terry, as a gangster's sweetheart, add to the complications.

Star at Bowdoin

Now showing on Bowdoin Square screen are "My Little Chickadee," teaming the hilarious combination of Mae West and W. C. Fields, and "Destry Rides Again."

Laurel, Hardy Hit At South Station

At long last, Laurel and Hardy are back in tandem in "The City Hospital," a comedy short now being featured on South Station screen. It will be a one-week run along with the complete show of two and a half hours of short subjects and the latest newsreels.

Join Boston's Show Sunday

'BENNY'S A-RIDING!'

Jack Benny, only cowboy with a valet, in that saga of the sagebrush, "Buck Benny Rides Again," is due on the Metropolitan screen on Thursday. The valet, the inimitable "Rochester," will make personal appearances on the Met stage at both afternoon and evening performances opening day. Practically the entire crew of Benny's justly famous radio program have turned up for his adventures among the dude ranches and the over-stuffed cactus. Andy Devine, Phil Harris, Dennis Day are all present. Heading the feminine contingent are the charming Virginia Dale and the Abbott Dancers.

LOVELY LADIES—Ellen Drew, Lillian Cornell and Virginia Dale, left to right, who do the romantic honors in "Buck Benny Rides Again," look just as attractive in western garb as in Paris creations. Film at Met next Thursday.

Paramount is congratulating itself on its stroke of genius in locating Benny's newest opus in the wide-open spaces in the face of the comedian's known aversion to horses and fresh air. "Rochester" in a 10-gallon hat should be another sight to see.

There's a made sort of plot underlying the antics in "Buck Benny Rides Again." Our hero, in love up to the eyebrows with Ellen Drew, drags his gang out to the primitive West in a vain effort to impress this little lady with his virility.

In the land of the dude ranches, he participates in runaways, fist fights and robberies, all to no avail. And then, just as he is about to be counted out of her favor, a hilarious climax situation provides that opportunity that lights her spark of love.

"Tear Gas Squad," the second feature, features Dennis Morgan and John Payne in a story stemming from the rivalry between a police sergeant and a rookie cop with plenty of tear gas smoke for background.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 27—It will be a reunion in the Mohawk Valley when Claudette Colbert and Henry Fonda get together again for "Chad Hanna," the Walter D Edmonds novel for which Darryl Zanuck just plunked out $50,000.

I didn't read this yarn of the early circuit days when it first appared in a national magazine under the title of "Red Wheels Rolling—but it has the same background of Edmonds' other screen opus, "Drums Along the Mohawk," which Claudette and Hank made last year.

Interesting to hear that John Ford will megaphone "Chad Hanna" as soon as he finishes "How Green Was My Valley" and a jaunt to Wales for authentic background shots—unless the war gets worse, of course.

Universal bosses are convinced that good old rip roaring action movies are what the fans want now—not sad dramas, or war tragedies. So they are really putting a bankroll behind "A Modern Monte Cristo" which is all about the South African diamond mines.

So far Victor McLaglen is the only star cast in one of the three top spots and Margaret Lindsay is expected to sign for the femme lead today. The story, an original by Edmund Hartmann and Stanley Rubin, will be shoved ahead of several other pictures.

THE Lowdown
By Gosh

WE HAVE OUR OWN TITLE for this week's movie at Loew's. Instead of "Young Tom Edison" we'd have called it "Andy Hardy the Boy Inventor". The picture has all the heart-warming fun of a Hardy Family adventure, only instead of Andy Hardy the Boy bombshell of Carvel, Mickey Rooney is Tommy Edison the boy terror of Port Huron! And how that kid can invent!

He invents his family into hot water! He invents trouble with a capital TNT! He wrecks a train; his dad spanks him; his gang calls him "addled"—but his mother stands by him (even when he blows up the school house!) But Tommy Edison rises triumphant—still inventing. And the critics are inventing new phrases to describe Mickey Rooney's finest performance.

For real genuine entertainment, the kind that leaves you glowing and happy that you came, we recommend "Young Tom Edison". A grand, human story of a great American family.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

WITHOUT TRAINING and experience most young wives would find it impossible to enjoy the adventurous life of an explorer . . . but Barbara Polk, who becomes the bride this afternoon of Bradford Washburn, mountain climber, Alaskan explorer and director of the Natural History Museum has specialized in natural history and biology and will not only enjoy the experience but be of valuable assistance to her hubby in collecting data on their expedition to Alaska this summer . . .

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvar W. Polk of West Roxbury, graduated from Smith College in 1936, was associated with the Harvard Biological Laboratories and has been on the staff of the Natural History Museum . . .

Easter lilies decorate the chancel of the picturesque Harvard Chapel for the four o'clock ceremony, and the reception is being held at the Faculty Club . . . The bride is wearing blush satin with a blush tulle veil falling from a coronet of lilies of the valley . . . The same fragrant flowers are combined with white orchids in her bouquet . . .

The matron of honor, Mrs. Frederic Eidsness of Plainfield, N. J., sister of the bride, is wearing the blue, and the pink clad bridesmaids are the Misses Elsa Parshley, daughter of Prof. Howard Parshley of Smith College and a teacher at Columbia, Geraldine Sweet of Boston, Elinor Ritchie of Cambridge, Marjorie Polk of Brooklyn, N. Dedham Prepares for Horse Show

EVEN THOSE who do not know all the fine points of horseflesh or the niceties of expert equestrianism (and most of us don't) enjoy the annual Memorial Day Horse Show at the Dedham Country and Polo Club . . .

By including all sorts of novelty classes such as obstacle races in which hurdles are made of rows of lighted candles, ladies bright little bonnets or a lineful of clothes, Dedhamites put on a show which is really entertaining to everyone . . . and omits the usual boredom of watching a few patient geegees standing in the middle of a show ring while judges take their own time standing off to get a long view, walking in a thoughtful circle and then kneeling and peering upward in search of those illusive curves of bones and muscles called "points" . . .

No Suh, when the Dedhamites ride you can all enjoy the fun . . . George C. Rice again heads the committee for the 1940 show and serving with him are many prominent residents of the Dedham and Dover countryside . . . Among them are ex-Governor and Mrs. Frank G. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson S. Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Beebe, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gardner Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Cabot, the Edward Cunninghams, Robert F. Herricks, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsley Loring, Mr. and Mrs. Gelston King, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Saltonstall, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan Sargent, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. Minturn Sedgwick, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Weld, the Philip Wrenns . . . and many others . . .

Two new committee members, Mrs. W. Farnsworth Loomis and Miss Janet Van Velzen, attended the recent committee meeting at th clubhouse and were gratified with Mrs. H. Eugene Sawyer's announcement that she had already sold fifteen boxes although no notices had been set out as yet . . .

Cooking

New Broiled Platter

By MARTHA LEE

Casual informal home hospitality is undoubtedly the oldest and unquestionably the most popular modern expression of the gracious art of friendship.

For today's hostesses, this form of entertaining is remarkably easy. Armed with a few ideas for quick, savory entrees that can be prepared from staples on hand, the modern woman can dare to ask the crowd for supper at a moment's notice.

Scores of possibilities for emergency entrees are found in the cans of salmon which are a part of the store of food staples on the homemaker's pantry shelf. One delicious broiled platter that will be popular all through the spring and summer uses generous slices of ripe tomatoes, large flakes of canned salmon, seasonings, slices of sharp cheese and crisp bacon. Served with hot rolls and butter, this hot platter is a complete and satisfying meal.

Such a platter is more than just an emergency meal service, however, for its high food value recommends it particularly for family menus. Salmon, cheese and tomatoes are all Grade A foods that should make frequent appearance on the table.

SALMON ROUNDS PIQUANT

1 lb. canned salmon
3 ripe tomatoes
Salt and pepper
Lemon juice
6 slices sharp cheese
Sliced bacon
Parsley

Cover a baking dish with thick slices of tomato, sprinkle with salt. Pile flakes of canned salmon on the tomato slices. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Cover each tomato with a slice of sharp cheese. Place under the broiler until cheese is melted and golden brown. Serve with slices of broiled bacon, garnished with parsley and lemon curls. Makes 6 servings.

SALMON CREAM

½ lb. canned salmon, well mashed
2 egg yolks
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. cayenne
Small piece of onion, chopped
½ tsp. mace
½ cup milk or cream
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. bread crumbs

Mix ingredients well, put in mold, cover and steam 30 minutes. Unmold on hot platter and serve with drawn butter sauce. Makes 4 servings.

DRAWN BUTTER SAUCE

Stir ¼ cup flour into 1-3 cup melted butter. Slowly add 2 cups boiling water, stirring constantly and cook over low heat until smooth and slightly thickened. Season to taste and serve on meat, fish or vegetables.

SALMON PATTIES

2 cups canned salmon, finely minced
4 tbsp. tapioca
¼ tsp. salt
2 bouillon cubes (chicken flavor)
Few drops scraped onion
Dash of pepper
Sifted bread or cracker crumbs
1 egg, beaten with 3 tablespoons milk and dash of salt

Drain liquid from fish, measure, and add hot water to make 1½ cups. Add tapioca, salt, and bouillon cubes, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear and mixture is thickened, stirring frequently. Add onion, pepper, and fish. Chill. Shape into patties. Dip in egg mixture, then roll in crumbs. Fry in skillet containing hot fat ¼ inch in depth, turning patties to brown on both sides. Drain. Garnish with sliced cucumber. Makes 8 patties.

PORTIA NEWMAN CLUB TO ATTEND BREAKFAST

Smart Set Fashions

Cotton Reigns Anew

PERHAPS there's something of patriotic fervor to it, certainly the cause of cotton in fashion and business is being championed by the National Cotton Council in such a way as to command everyone's attention. Marking this year's celebration, there is a new "Maid of Cotton," a Memphis debutante, who is flying all over the country, making an exciting tour in behalf of this style-right and fine wearing fabric. She is to be in Boston for a fashion show in a smart shop, from Monday through Wednesday next week . . . and we consider this suit, which she will model then, and which is available for you in the shop, to be one of the smartest buys of its kind!

There are loads of other tremendously good-looking cottons in the show . . . but this one we'd cleave to, if we were confined to one!

Why? Because it's the smartest of the casual, tailored things yet . . . that bright mind of Mary Lewis thought up its trig design. It's a fine-ribbed two-piece cotton suit of denim blue . . . to be worn in town or country! Clever and cute are the big, naive "panty waist" buttons that trim its flap pockets and button up the jacket. And do you see that wonderful flare skirt? The suit, believe it or not, is only $7.95, in sizes 12-18. Tested for washability, too! If you'd like to know the name of the Boston shop which will feature this, among other Maid of Cotton fashions in a show, and if you'd like to add it to your summer wardrobe . . . phone the Fashion and Beauty department for all further information, LIBerty 4000, any week-day except Saturday, or write us.

Good Manners

Let These Rules Guide You

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Important social assets to remember:

1—Remember names. Train yourself to connect names with faces. Train yourself to catch the name of the person to whom you are being introduced—and to use the name when you acknowledge the introduction.

2—Pleasant and complimentary is the habit of using a person's name often in a conversation. We all like the sound of our own names!

3—Look with interested and concentrated attention at the person who is speaking to you.

4—Take time to be gracious, thoughtful, to get the other person's point of view, to say the understanding thing.

5—Other people will like you better and you'll like yourself better if you open your eyes and your spirit to look for things to praise and not spend so much time looking for things to criticise.

6—Express appreciation in your words and in your acts.

You Can Be Beautiful

No Time for Exercise?

By ARLINE GOULD

IF YOU JUST have "no time for exercise" . . . don't blame your over-weighty curves and unbecoming posture on that . . . because with the astounding new exercises which you do in bed . . . in the bath . . . at your office or school desk . . . it just takes a little extra ambition, but not much effort, to reduce and to whip your figure into something really delectable to see . . . la!

It may seem like the pipe dream of a lazy gal . . . this new series of exercises . . . but actually they're based on scientific knowledge of muscular and fat tissue structure. And they direct ordinary activities into regulated action that just burns down the stored-up fat.

Don't let the minimum of exertion and effort fool you. They strengthen sagging muscles of shoulders and back for a bosom-firm-and-high line that's any smart girl's goal these days. They whittle down waistline, hip and thigh. They relax taut nerves and muscles.

And we have this leaflet, complete with diagram sketches of the whole series, just as you would get it in one of the town's most fashionable salons . . . exclusively devised for our readers. It's yours for the asking!

Great favorites are the "in bed" group, and fun to do. These are wonders for bulgy tummies and thighs that are too well upholstered.

However, we're pretty proud of the office or school desk exercises, which show you how to gain complete relaxation without standing in the aisle and doing the old-fashioned setting-up stuff. One of them, praise be, will show how to correct and prevent typist's slump.

If you'd like a copy of this "no time for exercise" leaflet, with reducing and limbering exercises to be done while you go about your regular day, write Arline Gould, Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Pattern 9359 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Siz. 16 requires 3¾ yards 39-inch fabric

To get this pattern send 15 cents to Boston Evening American, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th st., New York, N. Y. Ten cents additional will bring you our newest Pattern Book

Double-Talk

One street, Avon in Somerville, becomes Greater Boston's thoroughfare of twins . . . what with the arrival last week of the Ryder duo, both boys. But there are more pictures, and a story . . . so read on . . . right now . . .

Seeing Double In Somerville's 'Twin Street'

Callender may boast of its famous Quins, but Avon st., Somerville is the street of twins.

Yes, sirree! There, not more than a few houses apart you will find the Haggerty twins, the Sharkey twins and the Ryder twins.

If you walk through Avon street on a fine day when the respective twins are out for an airing, you'll think you're seeing double, and you acually will be. The bonniest duplicates you ever saw in your life.

First in the order of seniority are Joan and Tom Haggerty, who live at 54 Avon st., and who will celebrate their sixth birthday on June 23. Then they will attend kindergarten at the Cummings School. Dad Frank Haggerty is a contract plumber and is sure one proud papa.

Living at 20 Avon st., are two of the loveliest twin sisters in Somerville, or any other city. They are Joan and Jean Sharkey, who will be three years old come six months from now. Their proud daddy is George Sharkey, a teacher at the South Junior high school in Somerville.

Last, but not least, are the the latest Avon st. twins, both boys, who arrived last week to gladden the lives of the Carl Ryders of 83 Avon st. Pop Carl drives a newspaper truck.

A DRIVE for increased membership has been launched by the patriotic organization, WE WHO WOULD DIE, with headquarters at No. 621 South Hope Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

All Americans of draft age—18 to 40 inclusive—are qualified to join.

The objective is to keep the United States out of the European war, while advocating adequate preparedness for national defense.

WE WHO WOULD DIE is non-sectarian, non-partisan, and non-racial. Their creed says:

War is a menace to the progress of civilization; it is barbaric and, therefore, contrary to the higher laws of life and human conduct.

WORLD WAR VICTIM
Let Us Not Doom Other Young Men Now

The underlying cause of modern war is some form of economic disturbance or desire for domination. The current European war is but another manifestation of these basic elements.

Participation in war, although it may serve to increase the power and wealth of a selfish few, brings NO ULTIMATE BENEFIT to either the victor or the vanquished, for the supposed gains of war are illusory.

Participation by the United States of America in a European war would be particularly ill-advised because the costs arising therefrom would FAR OUTWEIGH any possible rewards.

Our taking part would immediately endanger the lives of millions of us vainly, because the present conflict involves nothing which could justify injury and death to the young men and others of our citizens.

Our engaging in Europe's wars would once again find us being called upon to conscript our manhood and our wealth for the purposes of destruction.

We could not hope to emerge from the struggle without great numbers of our people dead, maimed or otherwise injured and without untold damage to our physical possessions as well as to our principles of morality and our institutions of government.

MOREOVER, war and the accompanying militarization of the nation would invoke the emergency powers inherent in the Federal Government, pursuant to which extensive authority is already centralized in the President and the Executive Department.

Although such special powers are necessary in war time, they work a temporary abrogation of many of the fundamental principles of democracy.

The widespread effect on all phases of national life which would result from a modern war brings the threat of an INDEFINITE CONTINUANCE of such special form of government after the cessation of hostilities in order to cope with the economic maladjustments which would be the major result of a war of long duration.

Then, the various subversive elements would seek to use the chaotic aftermath of war to promote among us their alien and unacceptable doctrines of government.

The prudent and rational course of this country is therefore to develop its advantages of geographical position and its abundance of natural resources so as to promote domestic tranquility and prosperity and preserve the principles of democracy.

Our country should make of itself a CITADEL OF PEACE AND FREEDOM and should as a matter of principle remain aloof from a struggle of obscure and questionable purpose.

REMAINING NEUTRAL, the United States of America should devote its energies to constructing and maintaining a STRONG SYSTEM OF NATIONAL DEFENSE within the framework of its basic political principles in order to meet any threat of actual invasion of this country or of direct attack upon its vital interests.

The greatest danger to the preservation of American neutrality is the employment of SUBVERSIVE and FALSE propaganda designed to draw us into the conflict abroad.

The SOLE ANTIDOTE for the poison of propaganda is the WIDE DISSEMINATION of the TRUTH and of the elements of CLEAN and UNBIASED THOUGHT.

Consequently, it is a primary duty of the youth of this nation not only to PRESERVE and DEFEND our country in peace and at war, but to UNITE in the common purpose of keeping America true to the course of its own best interests so that it will never become necessary to answer our country's call to prosecute a war into which it has NEEDLESSLY been plunged.

A MAN who won the love of 18 beautiful women says: "It is easy to win a woman. Find her weakness and you have her." Sounds as if it might be a good way for a woman to win a man. Trouble is there are too many women using the same system . . . statistics claim that there are only 3,000,000 unemployed in the U. S. A. This recalls the crack of Holloway Frost: "There are three kinds of lies—lies, darn lies and statistics" . . . Who wrote "Madamoiselle from Armentieres?" But the current type of fan doesn't know the difference. Only one in twenty thousand knows anything of the fine points of the game. All they want to do is screech delightedly like a pack of high school co-eds.

"CASSIUS was lean, Nero was fat, Lincoln was tall, Napoleon was squat" is an advertisement excerpt. Lincoln and Napoleon are able representatives of the tall and short men who are not slender. I feel the latter, however, might justly object to the ugly designation "squat." But why pick such a pair of rascals and double-crossers as Cassius and Nero as typical lean and fat men. It's an outrage. In behalf of the many lean and fat clients of this department, I demand a retraction.

IT SEEMS to be definitely established that baldness is an inherited trait. Only thing to do for bald-headed men is for some genius to originate a wig that will deceive the public as well as some of the wigs women wear . . . In the World War, Italy bargained with both sides and took what was considered the best offer. However, the Allies did not pay off. We cannot, therefore, blame B. The Duchess of Windsor was born June 19, the Duke of Windsor was born June 23. They seem to be doing all right so far . . . Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

-:- -:- MY DAY

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 27—Before leaving Miami Thursday, we had a whole morning free, so I had a luxurious shampoo.

Then Dr. and Mrs. Frank Christian and their daughters came to call. We reached the train in ample time and, in going into the dining car, had a most pleasant surprise.

We found our Chicago friends, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Flynn, and enjoyed very much lunching with them. Little surprises of this kind are what make travelling such fun. When you like people a great deal, it is particularly pleasant to have a chance to see them when you haven't expected it.

WE WORKED the rest of the afternoon on a number of things which had been waiting to be done when we had a few consecutive hours of quiet. The train was crowded with people coming north. They were evidently reluctant to give up their vacation spirit and so clung to the clothes which they had been wearing during their holiday. Bright-colored slack suits made the dinner quite a charming picture.

When we went in for dinner it was crowded, and we had to wait about 15 minutes, but we were through dinner before we reached Jacksonville, where we changed for Asheville.

The trip yesterday morning up into the mountains had been perfectly beautiful. The young green of the trees, with luxuriant white dogwood gleaming through the woods, and numerous noisy, little brooks tumbling down the hills over the gray rocks, have made every turn a joy to the eye.

One thing surprised and interested me. In a little clearing on the side of a hill we saw two mountain cabins, no different from the average type, though they looked a little better built. What a change there was, however, in the outward surroundings.

Each of them had a little stone wall holding up a grass terrace in front of the porch, and planted all around it were the lovely purple flowers which grow like a carpet through the woods.

Some little trees had evidently been planted around the cabins, and I could not help feeling that some very good influence had been at work to make such neat and tidy exteriors, where one is never surprised to find careless and ill-kept cabins, out buildings and yards.

IT WAS nice to arrive at a familiar, homelike place like the Grove Park Inn.

I have not seen either Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre or Miss Durand who are here, since they left Washington.

My husband was here last autumn, but I was not with him, so it is really quite exciting to see them all in a short time. I have another friend here, whom I hope to see.

DURANTE "GETS EVEN" WITH MONKEY

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, April 27—Jimmy Durante, bitten by one of the monkeys which will appear with him in "Keep Off The Grass," refused to rehearse with them, unless he was armed with two pairs of gloves, a chair, and a gun with blank cartridges. Jimmy finally was persuaded to risk, unarmed, one more rehearsal. The monkeys were brought out by their trainer—and one of them snarled at Durante—who snarled back. The frightened monkey recoiled, and rushed to cover . . . "See?" Jimmy assured the trainer. "There's only one way to train 'em monkeys—bulldoze 'em."

OLIVIA AND WARNERS MAKE PEACE

By Louella O. Parsons

Olivia De Havilland

HOLLYWOOD, April 27 Bill Shakespeare must have had some of these studio battles in mind when he wrote, "All's Well That Ends Well." Olivia De Havilland, who was suspended by her studio, is not only back in good standing but has been elevated to stardom by Jack Warner, who feels she deserves it. Her first starring vehicle will be "Annabel Lee."

Jack, with whom I talked just before we both left for the William Randolph Hearst birthday party, said, "I give Olivia credit for her performance as Melanie in 'Gone With the Wind' and, naturally, we are anxious to follow that up with equally fine roles." Come to think of it, the role of Annabel Lee, child wife of the unhappy Edgar Allan Poe, has many of the same heart appealing qualities as Melanie. Jeffrey Lynn is already set for the Poe role and Donald Crisp and Brenda Marshall have supporting parts in Tom Reed's story, based on the life of the tragic American poet.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

AS HE WALKED to the bus terminal Jerry Nason was happy. Fate had been kind during the past five years—the five years since he had married Bess. He was prosperous now; had a comfortable home, and with Bess in it it was full of graciousness.

It was amazing to think that they were five years married, and that just mentioning Bess' name still gave him the same satisfaction it had in the early days of their marriage. And Bess loved him, too. He was sure of that.

ONE WINTRY AFTERNOON Jerry sat in his office alone. He felt tired and thought longingly of home. Suddenly he decided to go there.

Reaching home, he found Bess absent. Jerry sat down. Soon Bess would be back and they would have a cosy tea together as usual.

Suddenly, his attention was caught by a sheet of paper on the table. His eyes saw the words "Dearest Darling." He read on:

"My Darling, when am I to see you again? You know how unbearable I find this waiting. I can't stop thinking of you, your loveliness, your dearness—the way you have of slipping your hand into mine. How wonderful that I alone know of these loving ways of yours."

The note was unsigned. A love letter to his wife! Typewritten in order not to betray the writer!

"I WISH I'd known you'd be home early, Jerry. I'd come home earlier. I've only been out shopping," said Bess.

"I found this on the table, Bess," began Jerry. "I'd like an explanation."

"An explanation? Why Jerry?"

"It is most unnatural. I arrive home early, and find a love note to my wife lying on the table. Who is this man, Bess? Do you really love him?"

"Yes, I DO," she said softly, her face lovely with a quiet pride.

Jerry turned away.

"Jerry, that note—it's only a typed copy I made. I have the original. It's upstairs. YOU wrote it to me yourself—seven years ago!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THERE'S a grand book out. "As The Twig Is Bent" by Leslie B. Hohman, associate in psychiatry, Johns Hopkins Medical School. And if ever there was a "must read," this is it.

Theoretically, this is a book on how to raise children. Actually, it's the dope on how to recognize the cussedness and meanness in yourself. And take it from me as a mother, you can't raise any child until you realize what a mess you are in your own private personality.

HERE are some quotations:

"If the fathers of America suddenly became as vacillating in their performance in business as a majority of them and their wives are in bringing up their children, within the next six months the rolls of the unemployable would swell to a size that would make the staunchest hearts in Washington flutter."

Does that mean that you don't love little Junior and Jessica? Of course it doesn't. But it does mean that you do not work at the job consistently and intelligently as you would at any trade.

You've never really put it to yourself in these words but you've taken it for granted that children can be raised by fits and starts . . . and that you're such a Special Treat and Shining Example that the little darlings will go straight just by having you around occasionally.

No parent is a Special Treat to the average, smart, modern child unless he proves it by performance.

NOW for another—

"If you are constantly unhappy, constantly disillusioned, or constantly unable to attain your ambition, look for basic faults that gained the upper hand in you before you were 15. You do not need to wander into psychologic hinterland in search of obscure possible causes with which to tinker."

That goes for Junior. It means that the fear of dishonesty, the cowardice or conceit which root in him in his childhood will bear vicious fruit all his life, unless he has the courage and intelligence to trace things to their source and tear them out.

But it also goes for YOU, for, nine times out of ten, you, as a doting or whining father or mother, are responsible for that original fear, cowardice or conceit.

BLONDIE

Poor Little Rich Boy

Little Old Lady

By Charles McGuirk

ANNE HOBBES was a great reader. She always had been. When she was growing up, her reading habit was the bane of her family's existence. Because she wasn't just an ordinary reader who could take it or leave it alone. She was one of those who couldn't withstand the sight of anything printed on paper without stopping whatever she was doing to absorb it.

She read everything. Catalogs, newspapers, books of all kinds, patent medicine booklets, travel brochures, the classics, ancient and modern, police handouts, about 20 per cent of all the novels that have been published in the last 15 years.

If reading matter was alcohol, she would have been a drunkard. If she was doing anything and a piece of reading matter crossed her path, she stopped whatever she was doing until she had finished reading whatever it was that had attracted her attention. Everybody who knew her prophesied that she would come to no good end because of that habit. They pronounced her lazy, shiftless and undoubtedly balmy. And maybe she was, at that.

But the way things turned out, her bad habit got her a break when her mother and father died within a week of each other, leaving no insurance, and it fell upon her to take care of herself. It was, as she often told herself, pretty lucky that she had been an only child.

She had been born and brought up in a small town in upper New York State, and when kind friends had salvaged the few dollars that remained after the family debts, the doctor and the undertaker had been paid, and gave them to Anne, she decided to go to New York. New York, she told the same kind and by now bewildered friends, was the place for a young girl to go because everything happened in New York. Romance and adventure. A girl could gain fame and riches there, if she were lucky.

ONE OF 500,000

"Everything can happen there, all right, Anne," Judge Ruskin, her father's old friend, told her, "but it can happen to people, and a lot of it mightn't be good. What would you do when you got to New York? You haven't any special training. You'll be just one of about 500,000 young women who go into the town with some special talent, or at least enough training in something to assure them a job."

The judge could have said that she was not a raving beauty, because indeed she wasn't. She was a nice enough looking girl about five feet six and averagedly shapely. She had nice intelligent brown eyes and a wide mouth and black hair and a chin with a dimple in it.

"Well I haven't much training in anything," Anne admitted to the judge, "but I can do housework and I could learn other things. But what I think I will do is to get a job in a book store. I know quite a lot about books. Maybe I know enough about them to sell them."

"You'd better stay here for a little while," the judge argued. "I can put you up at my house and see that you get a training in stenography. When you've finished business school, you can go down to the city. You'll have something to lean on."

But Anne refused. To tell the truth, she was wild to get to New York, and not to sell books either. She had read so much about it all her life that to her it was a wonder city and living any place but in it would be just marking time, so the judge threw up his hands and told her to write him if she ever needed anything very badly and wished her God speed.

The Cast of Characters in "Little Old Lady"

ANNE HOBBES, who turned from reading books to selling them.
JOEL McINTEE, who writes what he imagines is poetry.
THE LITTLE OLD LADY.

Strangely, her vice of reading everything gave her the necessary knowledge to cope with the city. When she got off the train at the Grand Central, she went to the travel bureau desk and found out where the Y. W. C. A. was located. She had nearly a hundred dollars pinned securely in her brassiere and something like seven more in her handbag. She rode to the Y. W. C. A. in a taxicab. The next morning, she fared forth in search of a room. She had found one within an hour and was settled in it in another hour and that gave her a little time to look around.

To tell the truth, she had the sneaking and half-hopeful fear that some man would accost her or follow her along the street or insult her in some other way—some acceptable young man—but nobody paid the slightest bit of attention to her. Tiring of looking for romantic insults, she bent her energies to seeking out places of employment. She bought all the morning papers and went back to her room and turned to the literary sections.

HER FIRST JOB

In no time at all, she knew the location of every big book store in the city. The next morning, she made the rounds of them, but they were all filled up with saleswomen. A slight fear clutched her. If she couldn't sell books, she couldn't do anything. She wasn't sure she could ever sell books but, at least, she knew what books were. At the last book store, she was turning away when the girl who had interviewed her said,

"Why don't you try the department stores? Most of the big ones have large book departments."

Anne thanked her and took her advice. She was at the employes' entrance of Briskern's at 9 o'clock the next morning, and she was the first one to interview the personnel manager.

"There is an opening in our book department," the manager said. "Go over to Miss Ansell. She's head of it. Tell her I said to give you a trial."

It was as easy as that.

Anne turned out to be a good saleswoman, and the reason for it was remarkable. She very seldom read a book. Probably she reacted the same way a candy salesman does. Swamped by books, she decided to get sick of them. Mostly she got her information of her wares from the book sections of the Sunday papers. She would learn the story contained in the best sellers, spiel off some of the criticisms and she'd sold another book. This went on for a couple of years, and she came to be considered as the future head of the department when she met Joel McIntee.

McIntee was a writer. He said so himself. He lived in an attic or a cellar somewhere on the outskirts of Greenwich Village and wrote poetry so wonderful that the like of it never has been read, for the simple reason that the like of it never has been published. He was a large, thin boy with a big head, almost completely smothered by a shock of black hair. When hunger pushed him and good luck attended him, he worked as a shipping clerk here and there, but he didn't like to do it. He liked to sit down on a box and dream, and then transform the dreams to paper. Most of them were nightmares. The few people who knew Joel said, with a remarkable unanimity, he was no darn good, but when Anne met him on a party in one of those flimsy flats of which the Village boasts she thought he was wonderful.

The little old lady was an indiscriminate reader. Anne aided and abetted her.

FIRST SIGHT LOVE

It was love at first sight with Anne and love at second sight with Joel. He saw that she loved him and heartily agreed with her. He loved himself. After he kissed her for the first time, they spent many hours planning their future together. It would all start when the world recognized Joel for the great writer he was. Anne really thought he was great. Being a woman and in love, she transferred her real desires into a desire to believe in his capacity.

Joel was bad for her. She started slipping right after she met him. She began to neglect her work and to greet customers in a very half-hearted manner. The head of the department jacked her up a couple of times and finally told her flatly that if she didn't pay more attention, she would have to let her go.

Anne perked up considerably after that. Her sense of responsibility made her realize that her job was really in danger, and now she was practically supporting Joel, as well as herself, on her wages. So she went along fine until the little old lady came in one day.

The little old lady was somewhere in her late seventies or early eighties. She was a wisp of what had once been a woman. She had sharp bright black eyes which were the livest thing in her frail little body. She wore a shiny dress and a shiny black shawl and a little black bonnet under which her white hair was twisted in a topknot.

She was a browser. She came in day after day and week after week and read books, standing in the middle of the aisle or leaning against a counter. Sometimes she didn't quite understand passages she read and she would always come to Anne to help her out. Anne was glad to do so. She saw that the little old lady was in the grip of the vice which had held her prisoner when she was a young girl. She was an indiscriminate reader. Anne aided and abetted her. She did it so often that the department head again had her on the carpet.

"That little old woman," she pointed out, is a liability. She has been coming in here for three months now and she has never bought a book. In fact, she has stopped the sale of a book every now and then. We are going to discourage her from coming in here at all, and we want you to stay away from her. Answer her shortly when she asks you a question. Or don't answer her at all. Be busy when she seeks you out. I'm getting pretty tired talking to you, Miss Hobbs. I'm not going to any more."

A SUICIDE PACT?

Anne left that interview scared some more and firmly resolved not to pay any attention to the little old lady. But she just couldn't do it. She knew all about her. She knew that she was all alone in the world and that she had buried her husband and sons and daughters. At first, she tried to dodge her, but then she gave up. And soon she was just as bad as ever.

She got fired one Saturday night without notice. The department head pointed out that she already had warned her. When she told Joel about it, he was wildly angry. He would have to get some sort of a job now himself. They had to live, didn't they? And, by the way, now that they were both broke, it might be a good idea to get married. So they got married.

Joel couldn't get a job, and in two weeks they were broke. There came a night when there wasn't a scrap of food in the house or not a dime with which to buy it. Joel spoke of Ending It All in a suicide pact which would make the headlines, but Anne wasn't listening. She had heard a knock on the door. A man stood there! He said,

"Are you Anne Hobbs and did you work in the book department of Briskern's department store? You are and you did? Well, here's a notification that you are the heir to the estate of Mrs. James Wilkerson. She died a week ago and they found $10,000 in her room. She made a will the day before she died, leaving it all to you."

When she collected it, Joel said it would last them until he finished his first great novel. Anne knew better than that. She figured that, handled carefully, it would last them about eight years, not a hundred. By that time, she knew Joel and his capacity very well.

THE END.

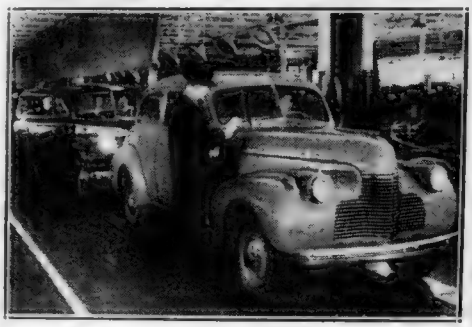
700,000TH 1940 MODEL



Demand since announcement of 1940 models resulted in a new all time high record for Chevrolet. They just completed the 700,000th model (shown above), and the event took place less than a month after production of the 600,000th model.

JENNEY OLDEST OIL FIRM

The Jenney Manufacturing Co., oldest oil company in the United States, celebrated its 128th anniversary by staging Thursday night the largest meeting in its history.

Between 900 and 1000 dealers and employes attended the banquet and meeting at the Ford Hall to hear details of the spring sales ai · Jenny is now sponsoring the largest color campaign ever run in New England by a gasoline-oil firm.

The Jenney Manufacturing Co. distributes its products throughout eastern New England, and among these products are the exclusive distribution of Solvenized Aero and Solvenized Hy-Power gasoline and Solvenized motor oil.

Charles S Jenney, president, the principal speaker was extended a warm welcome. Kenneth T. Howe, saleamanager talked on "The Sales Outlook for 1940" and contrasted the outlook with a comparison of previous years.

A talk on new products was delivered by J. R Winch petroleum engineer of the Lubri-Zol Corporation. Plans for 1940 advertising were outlined by K. W. Akers of the Griswold Eshleman Co. of Cleveland, advertising counsellors to the Jenney Manufacturing Co.

NEW CONVERTIBLE PHAETON

Dealers are exhibiting this convertible phaeton (above), one of the two new convertibles announced by Oldsmobile.

AN AUTO GETS OLD EVEN IF NOT DRIVEN A MILE

Scientists often have speculated on what would be the value of a fine automobile kept for years under a protective glass case, and then presented for sale in competition with modern automobiles.

One answer was furnished several weeks ago when an unused 1924 car not actually kept under glass but so maintained that its buyer says it is as good as the day it was built for $1645, went to the highest bidder for $10.

Nothing happened to change the value of this car except the march of time and the progress of research. Though the 1924 model was the pride of its day—and still is in perfect condition—modern cars selling for a third of a half of its original price can run rings around it.

The 1924 car does not have four wheel brakes, balloon tires or safety glass. Its new owner will have to replace its fan belt five or six times as often as he would the fan belt of a car built today. Many other repairs are on a comparable basis. The car has no air cleaner, no oil filter, no automatic choke, no crankcase ventilating system, no fuel pump, no shock absorbers, nor a number of other devices which the motor research has contributed since 1924.

The original owner, bought the car in 1924, drove it home then fell ill. Kept at all times in a garage, the car has been thoroughly protected from the elements. When sold, it had been driven only 4.5 miles.

Goodrich Fair Show Enlarged

A colorful portrayal of the amazing versatility of rubber and its role in automotive safety again will highlight the program of The B. F. Goodrich Company at the New York World Fair.

Enlarging of the Goodrich Arena in preparation for the 1940 opening already is underway, officials of the Akron firm announced.

Seating capacity of the arena, visited by more than five million last year, will be enlarged to accommodate 6000 persons and facilities provided to house additional dynamic displays of interesting uses of rubber.

New De Soto Models Have 2-Tone Finish

Featuring new two-tone treatments of interiors as well as exteriors, a luxury sportsman model has just been announced by De Soto.

Two-tone body color combinations on the new model now being exhibited are as follows: Gunmetal upper body with Bimini blue below; light gray upper body and dark gray below; and Amphibian green upper body with Garland green below.

SEN. GREEN IN HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Elwell J. Higgins, secretary to Sen. Green (D.) of Rhode Island, reported today that the Rhode Island senator had entered Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore, Md., for observation.

DAYS OF JALLOPY PAST SAYS BUICK SALES CHIEF

There are 26,000,000 passenger cars registered in the United States. Of that number, approximately 16,000,000 or nearly two thirds, have been manufactured in the last five years. Considerably more than a third of the automobiles in use in this country are from one to three years old.

America is on wheels and is not riding in jallopies.

These figures were recited today by W. F. Hufstader, Buick general sales manager, to emphasize the quality of merchandise from which today's used car buyer has to choose.

"During the past five years," he said, "the automobile industry has made more progress from the standpoint of engineering and design than in all the prior years of its history.

"The great advances in automobile design over the past five years represented a marked step-up in dollar value. Today's cars, which are far superior in every respect to their predecessors of a decade ago, cost considerably less money when new.

"That step-up in value and reduction in cost is passed on to the used car buyer who benefits by being able to buy a better used car at less money than ever before in the history of the industry.

"There are probably three or four times as many used cars sold in the United States each year as there are new cars. It is the experience of the industry in new car sales that about 2.7 used cars are involved in each new car transaction where a used car is taken in trade.

"In addition, hundreds of thousands of used cars are traded annually where no new car is involved. Used car trade, therefore, is a vast industry in itself.

"It is one of the most important phases of the automobile business and because it is so closely related to new car sales, automobile manufacturers have come to consider it on an equal basis with their new car manufacturing and sales programs.

"One of the outgrowths of this development is industry-wide support of reconditioning programs by its dealers whereby used cars taken in trade are tested and reconditioned before being offered for sale.

"Automobile dealers are in many instances guaranteeing their used cars and are universally placing their reputations behind the merchandise they offer.

"This takes much of the guess work out of used car buying and the public which spends millions of dollars for this unused transportation is assured of getting its money's worth."

Greyhound Bus Drivers Meet

"That Other Fellow" driving a truck or passenger car on the highways of America and the problems of conflicting speed and general traffic regulations of various states, cities and towns, was the theme of the meeting attended by over 230 New England Greyhound bus drivers and their families at the Statler.

Traffic and engineering chiefs of the American Automobile Association and the Boston Automobile Club which is the New England division office of AAA stated the meeting. Special sound films were shown and speakers were Thomas P. Fullam, AAA safety director of Boston, and Fred E. Hamlin, manager of the Boston club division.

Good Samaritan Patrol Put on Highways by Dodge

Fully equipped for any emergency and manned by drivers specially trained in safety and first aid methods, four new Dodge trucks just placed in operation by the Spector Motor Service, Inc., of Chicago will range the roads of half a continent in the new role of "Highway Samaritans."

With bodies painted white; hoods and wheels a bright red and with black running boards and lettering, these emergency first aid trucks will patrol the routes between St. Louis, Mo., Chicago, New York, Boston, Bridgeport, New Britian, New Haven and other points on the Atlantic seaboard traversed by the fleet of Spector Motor Service freight haulers.

Operated by three shifts of drivers, the trucks will be on the road day and night to offer assistance, not only to the Spector trucks, but to any motorist or other truck operator who may need it.

The inauguration of this "Highway Samaritan" service is the latest, and regarded as one of the most impressive moves in a prolonged and determined effort of the trucking industry to co-operate with and win the approbation of the motoring public.

Each of the emergency first aid trucks is equipped with a first aid kit, stretcher, flares, lights, fuses, fire extinguisher, crowbar, shovel, spade and a complete set of tools for making tire and mechanical repairs on any make of car or truck.

The drivers are expert mechanics and before being assigned to patrol duty are given a course in first aid and safety practice under the supervisior of the National Safety Council and American Red Cross.

Mistress Mary's Garden

New Varieties Thrill

By T. W. HGETT

WHY buy new plants? Are not the old ones just as good? Many flower gardeners who grow the same plants year after year, ask these questions.

Growers should have new varieties of plants for many reasons, according to Kenneth Wheeler of the floriculture department at Cornell. Plant hybridizers have not only improved colors, but have increased the size of flowers, the ability of plants to resist diseases and insects, but they have also made available new and more beautiful varieties, with a wider color range and a longer season of bloom.

In considering recent new varieties of perennials, the hardy asters offer possibilities. Outstanding is Beechwood Challenger, a vigorous thrifty variety.

This year will see the introduction of five new-named varieties of Delphinium: Dauntless, a lavender; Desirable, a deep violet; Debutante, a dazzling white; Delightful, a rich blue, and Divine, a rose-mauve.

Perennial phlox is another group of plants which always brings forth many new varieties. Among the new varieties are Salmon Beauty, Blue Boy, Harvest Time and Tigress.

Gardeners who are fond of sunflowers are urged to try three new offerings: Helianthus Coronation, the Helianthus Loddon Gold and the Heliopus Summer Gold.

Among the outstanding newer roses, the following might well be considered: Dickson's Red, Satan, World's Fair, Joyous, Summer Snow, Golder. Light and many others, says Mr. Wheeler.

In selecting plants for your garden, pick the best. It takes as much time and effort to grow a poor variety as it does a good one, and the poor varieties rob you of much pleasure that the garden can give.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

RALPH ZANELLI OF Providence will get the next crack at Henry Armstrong's world's welterweight title . . . In a bout at the Boston Garden under Goodwin A. C. auspices in about three weeks time . . . Zanelli and Mike Kaplan were introduced from the Garden ring and both "challenged the winner."

Eddie Mead directed operations in Armstrong's corner . . . Eddie is back in the money in a large way, and his many friends are pleased . . . Armstrong receivd a guarantee of $15,000 for his title defense match . . . The net gate receipts of $32,065 proved that Boston has gone big time for boxing again.

Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Club was at the ringside . . . Mike was impressed by the size of the crowd.

"I wish I could draw crowds like this at the New York Garden," said Mike . . . "I think Rip Valenti used good judgment in putting on the championship show at popular prices.

"I am willing to let Valenti show Joe Louis in Boston next Winter . . . I will not attempt to feature the 'Brown Bomber' at any more indoor shows in New York . . . The Johnny Paychek affair cured me.

"I was shocked at the untimely death of Joe Jacobs . . . I had talked with Joe only half an hour before his death . . . Joe was a genius at management, and knew the art of ballyhoo better than most of his rivals."

Galento to Keep His Boxing Dates

I ASKED JACOBS if Tony Galento would keep his boxing dates.

"Galento will fulfill his contracts with me," said Jacobs. "He will meet Max Baer in New Jersey in May, and if he wins I shall send him against Joe Louis in September . . . New York doesn't want a bout between Arturo Godoy and Louis, and I don't intend to force such a contest on the town.

"I have come to terms with Eddie Mead for several matches in which Henry Armstrong will defend his world's welterweight title."

Al Buck covered the bout for the New York Evening Post . . . Before going to New York, Al's home was in Boston and Maine . . . Al may be excused for rooting for Paul Junior to make a good showing.

Johnny Buckley watched the bout from behind Armstrong's corner . . . Johnny has been one of Eddie Mead's close friends down through the years . . . Billy Stevens was in town to handle some of Armstrong's publicity for out-of-town newspapers.

Harry Kelley thought Paul Junior made a grand showing against big odds . . . Harry's former partner, Chick Hayes, handled Paul Junior . . . The crowd stood in silence for a minute in tribute to the memory of Joe Jacobs.

Moving pictures were taken of the bout . . . The value of the pictures was increased when Paul Jnior went seven rounds . . . The pictures have already been booked for many New England theaters, and will go particularly big in Maine.

Racegoers Take in the Bouts

THERE WAS A delegation of racegoers from Narragansett Park at the ringside . . . Dave Wilson forgot handicapping the horses long enough to attend the bouts in the company of Dr. P. Buckley of Coolidge Corner . . . A special train returned to Maine immediately after the bout . . . Most of the Maine delegation also took in the Red Sox-Yankees game in the afternoon.

There were 18,000 paid admission and 6000 ladies at the Fenway Park game . . . Who said there is anything the matter with baseball or boxing in Boston? . . . Give the fans the kind of an attraction they wish, and they will attend it.

Mike Jacobs declared he might consent to permit Billy Conn, world's light heavyweight champion, to come to Boston to meet Al McCoy . . . There is also considerable talk about a Boston bout between Ceferino Garcia and Henry Chmielewski . . . The tremendous crowd at the Armstrong-Paul Junior bout will make boxing managers everywhere recognize the fact Boston is one of the finest fight towns in the country . . . In the boom days of boxing gates of $30,000 to $50,000 were not uncommon in this city.

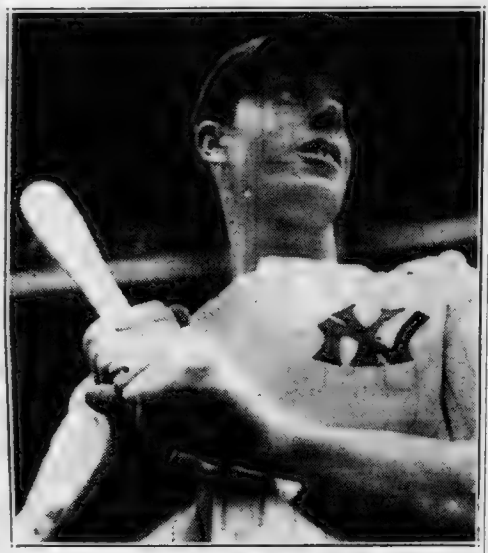
'Out for Long Time,' Joe Di Mag Admits

WASHINGTON, April 27 (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, famed center fielder of the world champion New York Yankees, and often called the greatest player in baseball, today confided to his teammates that he might be out of uniform "for a long time."



JOE DiMAGGIO, YANKEES STAR CENTER FIELDER

He said that Dr. George E. Bennett of Baltimore, who examined the leg injury he suffered in a pre-season exhibition game, told him he has a torn ligament affecting the cartilage in the knee and that teh doctor added he possibly would be out of the lineup for some time.

Previously Dr. Bennett, in a statement in Baltimore, said DiMaggio should be able to play within a week.

The slugging star has not yet appeared in a Yankee game this season and said he went to see Dr. Bennett because he "was getting worried" about the injury.

DiMaggio said the knee "still hurts. It just feels like I wrenched my knee—that's all."

The Yankees, without DiMaggio, are currently in fourth place in the American League.

DiMag's Loss May Mean Pennant to Yanks

Loss of DiMaggio for any length of time may very well mean the end of the Yankees' domination in the American League.

DiMaggio was the big thump in the world champions' attack, leading the league in batting last year with a .381 average. In addition he hit 30 home runs.

His absence, and that of Jake Powell, injured left fielder, leaves the Yanks with only three outfielders, all left-handed hitters. Both DiMag and Powell bat right-handed.

The only right-handed batters in the regular lineup now are Frank Crosetti, Joe Gordon and Babe Dahlgren. Crosetti batted .233 last year and Dahlgren .235. Gordon, though a long hitter, batted only .284.

That is why the league has been pouring left-handed pitchers against the Yanks, why a novice like Chubby Dean of the A's can beat them twice within ten days.

The strength of the Yankees hitting now lies in Red Rolfe, Charlie Keller, Bill Dickey and George Selkirk, and only Keller and Dickey are as effective against left-handed pitching as they are against right.

DiMag's loss may also mean the lowering of the morale on the part of the champions, and this, even more than their light hitting, would be fatal to them.

It was their cockiness, their complete confidence in themselves, that enabled them to recover so quickly a year ago after they received five straight thrashings from the Red Sox.

Such a decisive licking has been ruinous to many other clubs in

STORY ON PAGE 26

WHIRLWIND action as Welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong and Paul Junior waded into each other savagely at Garden. Note the tense expression on both boys' faces. It was toe-to-toe, head-to-head every minute of the way. It was Boston's biggest boxing crowd in years, and they went wild over Armstrong's durability, Junior's grit.

AS ARMSTRONG connected with left hook in above photo, Junior is giving him a receipt in picture to left. Speed-ray camera caught the battlers in action mid-way through third round when action was at its peak. Bitter battling such as these remarkable action photos show and the enthusiastic response of the crowd may result in Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis defending his title here soon.

BENNETT OF MAINE SETS HAMMER MARK

PHILADELPHIA, April 27 (INS)—A brilliant quartet of sprinters from North Texas State Teachers today opened the second day of the Penn relay carnival by racing to a smashing victory in the half mile college relay championship of America.

Running under a hot morning sun, the Texans set a new carnival record at 1:25.4 and came within half a second of the world record.

They had to go all out to beat Pitt, the defending champions, by a yard. Xavier of New Orleans was a yard further back in third place.

TOOTEL'S MARK FALLS

Meanwhile another carnival mark was tossed in the discard when Bob Bennett of Maine threw the hammer 171 feet 2¼ inches, beating Fred Tootel's old record by seven inches.

Stanley Johnson, also of Maine, was second with 171 feet 6¼ inches; Matt Flaherty of New Hampshire third with 170 feet 6¼ inches and John McLaughry, Brown's defending champion, fourth with 156 feet 8¾ inches.

CADET WINS JAVELIN

Another defending champion, Anson Perina, of Princeton, could do no better than fourth today as Don Blount of Dartmouth captured the broad jump title with a leap of 24 feet ¾ inches.

Walter Arrington of Michigan State placed close up with 23 feet 11⅝ inches, and Lester Murdock of Cornell took third with 23 feet four inches.

The Army came through with its first champion in John Guckeyson, who won the javelin throw with a toss of 203 feet 4½ inches.

This was far from the record, but satisfying enough because it beat out Ed Hahnfeldt of the Navy who heaved 202 feet 2 inches. Al Mikeska of North Texas Teachers was next with 197 feet 11 inches.

U. S. Horse Wins British Cup Race

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—John Hay Whitney's American-owned Time Step today won the Victoria Cup, defeating Lord Portal's Ombro by a head in the mile and quarter race.

Capt. J. B. Fitzgerald's Rogerstone Castle was third. Time Step was held 100 to 8, Ombro at 7 to 2, and Rogerstone Castle at 100 to 6.

Di Mag Out Long Time

the past and if the Yanks ever start worrying just a little bit, their end is in sight.

THEY'LL HAVE TO FIGHT

They certainly didn't look like champions against the Red Sox yesterday and they won't look like champions when opposed by pitching such as Emerson Dickman showed because they haven't got the batting strength without DiMag in the lineup. And it is doubtful if Red Ruffing, 20-game winner in '39, will be so effective this year.

With the improved pitching the Sox have received from Dickman, Bagby and Harris, their chances of gaining the peak for the first time since 1918 are brightened considerably.

And Cleveland, with Bob Feller as the spearhead, also seems capable of carrying the torch right through September. It's a cinch that the Yanks will not have the walkaway they had a year ago.

'WE'LL GET GOING,' CASEY PROMISES

By BILL GRIMES

"That's right" admitted Manager Casey Stengel this morning at National League Field, where his Bees opened a two-game series with "Doc" Prothro's Phillies this afternoon, "We did have a tough trip.

"The weather was tough and so were we. And, I guess from the results the opposition was even tougher.

"It's too much of an assignment for any manager to alibi five straight defeats, so I won't try it. I will say, however that I haven't given up by any means. And I'll even say that we'll get going, for we are capable of playing better ball than we've displayed up to now.

"Due to the weather, I haven't a pitcher that's in shape. They look to have their stuff before games but they peter out. With the exception of the first game with the Giants we had a chance to break into the win column in every game we've played.

CAN TIE PHILLIES

"We can move into a tie with the Phillies if we beat them this afternoon. I'm trying Bill Posedel today He's due for a win, despite the fact that he has had a sore arm and a cold has had him down for more than 10 days.

"Since we went on the road I've made two changes in my regular lineup. I figured on Cuccinello, Hassett and West to furnish enough punch to carry Sisti and Loane until they got the feel of big time competition. Unfortunately, my supposed power hasn't hit for the size of their hats. West tops my power with .200, with Hassett batting for .190 and, of all things, Cuccinello for .176.

ROSS FINDS EYE

"Ross is doing better than I thought he would. I felt that this youngster might have trouble getting started. Although he hit exceptionally well in the south, Ross wasn't any too impressive against big league pitching. But, since the start of the regular season, he has done so well that he's hitting for .412.

"Maybe I'm on my way toward solving my second base problem, now that I've got Rowell at the keystone sack. In the game and a half he played at second, Rowell has looked very well. He has made some fine plays and he was the pivot man on a fast double killing yesterday in New York. Moreover, Rowell is hitting and, mister, we need hitting. He has made four hits out of eight official trips to the plate for an even .500.

START WEST TOMOROW

"Unfortunately, we are only home for today and tomorrow. We start west tomorrow night and will not return until May 11. And, that reminds me that the Bees didn't get a break from the schedule makers. Imagine having only four home games scheduled before going on a whirl around the western circuit. Of the four games, the big-wigs were so gracious as to assign us to play at home, already one has been washed out.

"I haven't the slightest idea how I'm going to iron out our weaknesses while we are away. On the road, the visiting clubs are not allowed on the field until 2:10. They don't get enough batting practise to even keep their pitchers in shape. But, we'll be in there fighting and hoping for a few breaks, which might put us across."

The Bees have dropped five in a row but they still have their heads up. And, they'll prove that statement by turning out en masse for the Chamber of Commerce dinner tonight.

Dropping down slightly in class, Sadie F. won by a half a length over Mrs. E. Denemark's High Toes and paid $6.90 to win. The Denemark colt finished two lengths in front of Mrs. Sam Orr's St. Moritz and paid $4.50 to place. St. Moritz brought $3.20 to show.

Sadie F. was timed in 1.13 for six furlongs over a track classed as fast.

Taking the top at the start, J. J. McKinley's Hieronymus finished two lengths in front of B. Stark's The Loom in the third event of the day to pay $8.40.

The Loom made a late bid, but it was not good enough to knock down the winner, and his supporters had to be content with $6.20 to place.

Two lengths away was Mrs. Emil Denemark's Gigi that bested Lo Mar Stock Farm's Mumble in a photo finish and returned $4.70 to show.

The crowd wagered $206,835 on the first three races and the daily double.

SCORING ON SINGLE—Johnny Cooney, Bees veteran, dusts it home to score a run after his single to center against the Jints in the fifth. Catcher Harry Danning waits in vain for the ball, late on the relay in. Cooney singled, the ball was booted by Rookie Rucker and ancient Johnny showed a gazelle's speed as he fled home. Few ball players ever tally on a one-base hit like this.

JUNIOR HELPLESS BEFORE FISTS OF ARMSTRONG

By JACK CONWAY

Hammerin' Henry Armstrong was every inch a champion as he stopped Paul Junior of Lewiston, Me., in seven rounds before 16,469 pop-eyed fans who paid their way into the Garden.

Armstrong dropped the challenger for his welterweight title to the canvas four times before Referee Johnny Martin halted the uneven contest.

Paul Junior made a good showing, but he never had even the proverbial outside chance of winning. From the time late in the first round that Armstrong twice dropped the Maine warrior to the canvas it was only a question of how long the contest would go.

FAILED TO TAKE COUNT

Paul Junior didn't take any count on the two knockdowns in the first round. In the sixth and again in the seventh sessions, Paul Junior was on the canvas for counts of nine. He was in poor physical condition when he got up after the final knockdown, and it was good judgment on the part of Referee Martin to stop the contest.

Armstrong knew he had his man after the first round, and didn't take any unnecessary chances. He mauled around a great deal at close quarters, and managed to keep inside of Paul Junior's wild right hand swings.

In the fourth round Armstrong stood off and did considerable boxing. He picked his spots for his punches, and didn't take any needless chances.

JUNIOR PROVES ABILITY

Paul Junior looked better than most of the fans expected he would. He proved he could take a healthy belt on the chin, and come back fighting. The fact Paul Junior lasted seven rounds satisfied the fans who were anxious to see Armstrong in action.

There was probably not a person in the Garden who thought Paul Junior could win. Armstrong by a knockout was almost the unanimous selection. My pick was Hammering Henry inside of 10 rounds.

Paul Junior was rated to give Armstrong a rugged battle, and he lived up to advance notices.

Armstrong fights best when he is whirling to close quarters, weaving from side to side, and blazing away with both hands. That is the way he beat Barney Ross and held off the assaults of Ceferino Garcia.

FAST START

At the gong in the first round Armstrong left his corner winging away with both hands. A short right hand punch to the jaw dumped Paul Junior to the canvas. Junior got up without a count to run into a right on the head that stood him on his head. Once more Paul Junior got up without a count. At the bell Paul Junior was in bad shape.

Armstrong fired with both hands in the early stages of the second stanza. Paul Junior tried to protect himself as best he could, but took a frightful shellacking. Late in the round Paul Junior rallied and shook the champion up with solid blows to head and body.

Paul Junior continued to show well in the third round. This was his best session and he was entitled to an even break on the matter of points.

The Paul Junior League surge then halted abruptly. In the fourth and fifth rounds, Armstrong hit Paul Junior at will. If Armstrong had wished to take a few more chances, he could have ended the show in the fifth round.

The champion boxed at long range in the sixth round which saved him the risk of injuring his hands on Paul Junior's elbows. One of Armstrong's overhand rights bounced off Paul Junior's jaw, and the Maine welterweight crashed to the canvas and took the benefit of the count of nine. As Paul Junior went to his corner at the end of the round, it was only a question of a few minutes before the tussle would be over.

Armstrong shortened up his punches in the seventh round. A left hook propped Paul Junior to the canvas. When the challenger got up, he had rubber legs, and was forced back across the ring as Armstrong showered him with blows.

Referee Martin halted the one-sided bout, and raised Armstrong's right hand in the air as a token of victory.

Paul Junior weighed 141 pounds Armstrong 139½ pounds.

Freddy McLean, Roxbury, scored a technical K. O. over Bomber Remillard, Worcester, in the last round of the opening six rounder.

Johnny Seaman of Quincy, 163½, scored a three round K O victory over Young Dempsey of Rochester, N. H., 160.

Bill Tordiglione, North End, 144½, won an unpopular decision over Billy Connerty, Jamaica Plain, 148½, in a six rounder. It was a hard and bitter battle all the way.

Mary Servo, New York, outslugged and outboxed Dom DeClantis, Providence in six fast rounds.

Eddie Ellis, Quincy, defeated Jackie Caparell, Roxbury, in the final six rounder of the night.

Babe Young Top Hitter

By the Associated Press

As befits a team that is riding the crest of a six-game winning streak and is currently setting the big leagues afire, the Brooklyn Dodgers have three of their brightest young men among the 10 leading hitters of the National League.

On top of the Dodger parade with a fancy .364 is Cookie Lavagetto, the olive-skinned third baseman, whose mark makes him the fourth ranking National League batsman.

The other two Dodgers among the select group are Rookie Charlie Gilbert and the veteran Dolph Camilli, both clouting at a .333 clip.

DOC CRAMER .367

Heading all big league 400 batsmen is the New York Giant rookie first baseman, Norman (Babe) Young, with 11 hits in 23 appearances at the plate for a fulsome .478.

Elbie Fletcher of the Pirates is next with a .455 mark, just a whisper better than chunky Taft Wright of the Chicago White Sox, leading American League clouter, who has a mark of .444.

Chasing after Wright is Barney McCosky of the Detroit Tigers, who has bingled safely 11 times in 25 tries for a mark of .440.

TERRY TO BLAME IN BONURA CASE

NEW YORK, April 27 (INS)—The strangest case in the sometimes strange recent history of the New York Giants closed today with the sale of Zeke Bonura back to the Washington Senators.

No player ever tried harder to please, and few have come so close to succeeding without doing it. None within memory has been treated more shabbily than the big first baseman from New Orleans.

Having been around so many years, he was justified in assuming that he was a pretty good ball player, but Manager Bill Terry soured on his fielding and at that point the humiliation set in.

RIDICULED BY TERRY

He was so thoroughly ridiculed by Terry in the public prints that the Giants couldn't very well keep him and nobody else would have him, until the Senators finally regained him for an undisclosed amount of cash and a minor leaguer in a deal announced by the Giants.

Thus, after having moved out of the American League—from the Senators to the Giants—on waivers prior to the 1939 season, he transferred back into the American League in this deal by the same process, and if the New York Yankees falter and the American League race tightens up, he might be a tremendous help to the Senators.

On the other hand, if the Giants by some strange quirk of fate should find themselves in the National League race and without a hitter to play first base, they might miss Bonura. Right now Babe Young is clouting at a .478 pace. But this can't and won't last.

LED GIANTS AT BAT

He suddenly might begin hitting .178, or the approximate batting average of his understudy, Jack McCarthy, who so far hasn't been able to make the first nine.

Anyhow, Bonura led the Giants in hitting last year and got himself in solidly with the fans and his teammates because of his enthusiasm, only to wind up finally with his $15,000 salary slashed to $7500 and his hopes rather rudely shaken by Terry's outbursts for publication.

After considerable bickering, he finally signed a Giant contract for $10,000.

It's all a little perplexing. He was a $15,000 club-batting champion one year and a $10,000 benchwarmer who was waived out of the league the next. Try to locate one like that in the books.

Y Swim Title Seems Headed For Indiana

The National Y. M. C. A. swimming championships seemed headed for Indiana as the meet entered its second and final day at the Boston Y pool on Huntington

A sterling group of natators from the Huntington, Ind., Y registered 25 points in the first day's competition, with Boston in second place with 14 points.

Trailing in order were: Easton, Pa., 13; Pittsburgh, 7; Brockton 5; Detroit, 4; Fort Wayne, Ind., 3; Worcester, 2.

Opening day competition included 150-yard backstroke, 220-yard freestyle, 1500 meters freestyle, low board diving, 50-yard freestyle and 300-yard medley relay.

First day heroes were John Dilley, 19-year-old high school student from Huntington, Ind., who broke the national record in the 150-yard backstroke; Murray Hubley, 16-year-old high school studen, from the same town, who won the low board diving; Gerry Ruddig, another Huntingtonian, who roke the 1500 meter swim record in the morning and was barely nosed out by Jack Strothers of Pittsburgh in the 220-yard freestyle in the afternoon, and Don Barker of Brockton, former Harvard swimmer, who won the 50-yard freestyle.

Marcabala had good early speed, readily gave way to the winner, held on well to the last eighth and then gave way badly. Open Gate failed to rally when shaken up after three-quarters. Sue Harpen was through early.

Gigi was under a snug hold for three-quarters, was put to pressure thereafter and held on fairly well.
